Down Go the Wages in Iron-Bound Pittsburg

And up go the taxes when the tariff barons say so.
This is a splendid year to think of these things.
And a good year to vote for honest tariff reform which means lower taxation.

WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., 8 a. m., Feb. 29.

The local forecast for to-day is continued rain and warm during the day. Colder and cloudy with snow early Tuesday morning.

The "low" or storm center reported in the west on Saturday has moved eastward over Lake Michigan and is now central over Lake Erie and the Ohio river valley. Its influence is felt this morning from Chicago to Washington and from Toronto to Atlanta, the heaviest rain being in the Ohio valley and amounting to fourtenths of an inch.

A "high" or clearing area follows today's storm and will be on us probably Tuesday night bringing a temperature of about 20 degrees above with it. The zero temperature reported in the United States to-day was 2 degrees below at Bismarck. The lowest in the northwest was 8 degrees below at Winnipeg.

The highest in Toledo yesterday was 45; the lowest this morning was 37. Total rainfall in past 24 hours was only three-hundredths of an inch.

Washington, Feb. 29.—For Ohio, Illinois and Indiana—Cloudy weather and rain or snow; heavy in the upper Ohio valley; winds shifting to much colder northwest, with a moderate cold wave, clearing to-night, cooler and fair Tuesday.

For Michigan and Wisconsin—Much colder; northwesterly winds and clearing weather, colder and fair Tuesday.

RUN DOWN BY A HACK.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 29.—(Special)—A boy and girl, aged respectively 7 and 10, and children of Moses H. Brundage, a wealthy and prominent resident of this city, were run down by a hack driver Saturday evening and received injuries which will probably terminate fatally.

HE WAS CELEBRATING.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 29.—(Special)—John Meitzler and Alfred Abbott drove out of the city Saturday night, and were fatally injured by the runaway of their team north of town. Meitzler is an old soldier, and had just received his quarterly pension allowance.

WAYS OF FRENCH PEOPLE.

They Are Still Discussing the Deacon Affair.

People in High Social Circles Rather Inclined to Censure the Man Who Shot M. Abeille.

London, Feb. 29.—The Deacon tragedy calls attention to the French disposition which is not palatable to English and Americans. Mr. Deacon is now said to be held in extreme aversion for his act by the large majority of the upper society of France. One reason is that M. Abeille, his victim, was popular in the salons, and another that the French think Mr. Deacon should have allowed his wife and M. Abeille to go if he found Mrs. Deacon cared for the latter, or else have shot the two of them.

A dispatch from Cannes, it may be added, says Mr. Deacon may not have such an easy acquittal as he expects. The French code excuses the husband for slaying if the parties are found in flagrant guilt, and the whole question will hinge on this issue. Mrs. Deacon is prepared, apparently, to testify that M. Abeille was not guilty on the occasion, at least, when he met his death.

A Paris letter states that in that city sympathy leads strongly towards Abeille and that influence is being brought to bear on the authorities to treat Mr. Deacon with proper severity. Should it be shown, as intimated by Mrs. Deacon, that her husband had connived in any way at their relations, the jury will find that the killing was not justifiable and recommend a term of imprisonment.

The influence of every cavalier serviente in France is thrown against the avenging husband, beside there is the prejudice of nationality, the French being extremely clannish in any issue between a Frenchman and a foreigner. The apparent friendliness of the judge d'instruction and of the jailers amounts to nothing. It is the custom of a French examining magistrate to worm all that he can out of a prisoner by appearing pleasant or otherwise and the same is the way of the police. Mr. Deacon's true friends feel very anxious as to his prospects.

POWDERLY TO BE THERE.

He Will Oppose the Reading Combine.

He Says the Roads Are Parallel and That the Recent Deal Is Illegal.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 29.—Grand Master Workman Powderly has announced his intention of being present at the hearing at Harrsiburg next Thursday of the complaints against the recent combination of the Reading, Lehigh Valley and other railroads interested in the anthracite coal deal.

Mr. Powderly declared in the most emphatic manner that in his opinion there was no question as to the roads being parallel, and therefore amenable to the law relating to combination of parallel railroads.

WAGES MUST DROP

Such is the Command From Ironmasters

Who Are Protected by High Taxation

"Solely for the Benefit of the Workingmen."

Hundreds of Men Thrown Out of Work.

A Very Cleverly Concocted Scheme by Which the Laborer Can be Made to Work for Less Money in the Mills.

Pittsburg, Feb. 29.—Following the discharge of the puddlers from all the furnaces at J. Painter's Sons' mills last week came the dismissal of 200 puddlers on Saturday by Jones & Laughlin. It is said that such discharges may be expected to a greater or lesser extent in all the large iron mills of Pittsburg this year.

The reason assigned for this is that iron is being driven out of the market by soft Bessemer steel to such an extent that the manufacture of the former must be largely curtailed to prevent an enormous overproduction. Coupled with the statement that steel is displacing iron daily, it is asserted that if the owners of the large iron mills throughout the country are to hold their own for any length of time against the advance of cheap and good steel, they must sell iron cheaper than it has ever been sold.

Willis L. King, general manager of Jones & Laughlin's mills, said last evening: "This state of affairs can have but one result, as far as the price of puddling is concerned. There is but one thing to do and that will be to reduce the wages of puddlers. That will be the only way in which proprietors of large plants will be able to save themselves from great loss. Iron cannot compete with steel unless it is made cheaper. Therefore the wages must be reduced."

Other iron men express similar views, and it is proposed to bring the matter before the Amalgamated association at an early date.

A FALSE REPORT.

No Attempt Has Been Made to Steal the Land Funds.

Creede, Col., Feb. 29.—There is positively no truth in the sensational reports sent out from here that an attempt had been made to capture the amount received for the sale of lands, which ranged in the vicinity of $150,000.

Last night the town was quiet and no demonstrations of violence were made in any quarter, although disturbances may arise when purchasers attempt to take possession of their lots.

BURLINGTON HAWKEYE SCOOPED.

Burlington, Ia., Feb. 29.—The Burlington Daily Hawkeye building was completely gutted by fire Sunday. The loss is about $12,000. The Hawkeye will be issued as usual without missing an issue.

READY FOR THE FIGHT.

Peter Maher Bound for New Orleans.

Billy Madden Has Twenty Thousand Dollars to Bet That Fitzsimmons Will be Defeated.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 29.—Two young Irishmen attended morning services at the Catholic church here yesterday. One was Peter Maher, who is to meet Bob Fitzsimmons Wednesday night, and the other was Jack Fallon, one of his trainers.

"We will not go into New Orleans until Wednesday," said Billy Madden yesterday. "I am doing everything to keep people from seeing Peter and sizing him up."

"We left New York Thursday; slipped away without letting a soul, not even the newspapers, know anything about it. We have been making the trip in slow stages to keep Peter up to form. I do not want to tire him out with travel, you see.

"I see by the papers that we are to go to Carrollton when we get to New Orleans, but that is not quiet enough. I have some other quarters arranged by telegraph, where we will be entirely out of the way.

"Peter is a good boy. He does not care a bit about being among the sports. If he wins that fight he will go off with some Irish friends or other and dance an Irish reel with the girls."

"Will Maher win the fight?"

"I do not know. We are not bragging. I understand the betting is in Fitzsimmon's favor. I have $20,000 with me to back Maher at such odds as that."

"Is he in good condition?"

"Tip-top; but if Fitzsimmons is in as good condition as he is cracked up to be by the newspapers he is just twice as fit as Peter."

Maher himself would not talk.

GRAY, OF INDIANA.

He Will Run for Governor of the State.

This, However, Will Not Take Him Out of the Race for a Place on the National Ticket.

Indianapolis, Feb. 29.—A report has gained circulation that ex-Gov. Gray, who has been mentioned as a candidate for president, has decided to be a candidate for the nomination of governor.

Mr. Gray is reticent, but the story goes that his determination to run for governor was formed when Congressman Bynum decided not to be a candidate.

This is not regarded as an announcement by Gov. Gray that he does not want a place on the presidential ticket. On the other hand it is considered that his nomination would give strength to his claims before the Chicago convention, and in the event that he is not placed on the national ticket his nomination and election as governor would make him a formidable candidate for Senator Turpies' seat in the senate.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.

The Rebels Only Awaiting the Opportunity for Another Raid.

London, Feb. 29.—Advices from Shanghai are to the effect that 20,000 rebels remain in the north and will make a descent when the weather become milder.

Government reports of the success of the regular troops over the rebels were exaggerated. Another invasion is sure to come in the spring.

BARNES WANTS TO QUIT.

He Has Grown Weary of Being Chairman of the People's Committee.

Massillon, O., Feb. 29.—A letter was received to-day by J. S. Coxey from H. F. Barnes, of Tiffin, chairman of the people's party state executive committee stating that the writer desired to retire from the position, and asking Senator Coxey to accept it.

Mr. Barnes recommends that John S. Berner, of Franklin county, be added to the committee, the other members being Hugo Preyer, Cleveland; Captain Cobb, Ironton, and John Seitz. Mr. Coxey has not yet decided to accept.

AGAINST SUNDAY CLOSING.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—A mass meeting was held last night at Central Music hall under the auspices of the American Secular union to protest against the closing of the world's fair on Sunday.

The societies represented were the National Religious Liberty association; Federation of Turners (35 societies); United Carpenters' council; Painters' District council; local union No. 55, American Flint Glass Workers; Cigarmakers' union; Journeymen Tailors; Socialistic Labor Party and the Central Labor union.

Speeches were made by C. B. Waite, president of the American Secular union; T. J. Morgan and others. Resolutions in line with the purpose of the meeting were adopted.

A DIFFERENCE IN ACCOUNTS.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 29.—(Special)—O. S. Bott, a traveling salesman for a Springfield house, was arrested here last Saturday night in response to a telegram from his firm, and was taken to Springfield by an officer Sunday afternoon. The charge against him is embezzlement. He expresses himself as confident of explaining the case.

HE WILL MAKE TROUBLE.

M. Constans Will Make a Row in France.

Paris, Feb. 29.—The exclusion of M. Constans from the new ministry is going to make trouble. Constans is not the man to stand tamely by and submit to it. The government will hear from him before long.

One of the first consequences of the disappearance of M. Constans, it is said, will be the pardoning by President Carnot of Henri Rochefort and Count Dillon, whose return to France the minister of the interior had inflexibly opposed.

BLED TO DEATH.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 29.—Saturday night Alex Freeman died from constant bleeding from various portions of his body. In this case blood flowed only from his nose, mouth, and lips. Mr. Freeman had bled almost constantly for nearly four weeks, the flow being checked only three or four times, and then only for a day or two at a time.

HILL AS A CAMPAIGNER.

He Works All the Fine Points of Politics,

And Makes His Bid Straight to the People.

He Admits That He is Working for the Nomination, and Says If He Gets It He Will Surely be Elected.

Washington, Feb. 29.—However agreeable or disagreeable it may be to the people at large, there is no doubt that David B. Hill, now a senator in congress from the state of New York, is attracting a good deal of attention in Washington as a presidential possibility.

Hill's friends are more active and persevering than was ever before known in the history of this government in the interest of a presidential candidacy. It seems to be Mr. Hill's idea that the presidency is to be won as the nomination for a ward constable or a justice of the peace is won, by personal appeal, promises, barter and trade.

Mr. Hill has his runners of the New York delegation, especially the Tammany men, continually running through the house of representatives and the corridors of the capitol picking up such prominent or influential men, in congress or out of it, as they can find and bringing them to the senator for introduction.

If the men picked up by the Tammanyites are members of congress and privileged to the floor of the senate, it is Hill's custom to receive them at his seat, as he likes the display it makes before the senate and the audience in the galleries, but if the man is an outsider, that is, neither a member of the house or senate, and not privileged to the floor of the senate, Hill goes out in the corridors and holds a levee, or goes downstairs to the restaurant and urges his availability, his democracy and his popularity as a presidential candidate there.

"Hill has adopted an entirely new tack as a presidential candidate. He has gone beyond and outside of the bonds and environments that have hitherto surrounded the presidency. Mr. Hill openly announces his candidacy to everybody who comes in contact with him, whether senator or representative, politician or newspaper man. He shakes hands with everybody who is presented to him and makes a little speech to everybody, something in this form:

Hill's Little Speech.

"I am glad to meet you. I know a great many men in your state. There are no better democrats in the United States than you fellows produce down your way. I hope that you will give me all the assistance you can during the presidential campaign. I can carry the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, and that will insure success at the next election.

"If I am elected I will not sit upon the throne in the white house, and every democrat in the United States can always have free access to me. I am one of the boys myself. I believe in rewarding the workers and you can rely upon it that if nominated for president I will be elected, and that the party workers will have a square show when it comes to distributing the patronage.

"There is nothing of the mugwump about me. I believe the offices belong to the boys who earned them, and I remember all my friends and stick to them all the time. Now, I will be very much obliged and thankful to you if you can do anything for me down your way. Pick out friendly delegates to the convention, and if I am elected president you can rely upon it that you can have everything you want in the way of patronage in your district."

This is the general text of Hill's speech. It varies somewhat from time to time, but at least 50 or 60 members of the house of representatives and several senators and some prominent politicians from the states who visit Washington have repeated it to your correspondent substantially as given.

The New York senator also repeats this speech to newspaper men, with some variations, with whom he comes in contact. He wants them to understand that he feels very friendly and affable to newspaper men and if he is made president the newspaper men will be "in it," so to speak, when the patronage is to be distributed.

Of course this extraordinary way of making a candidacy for the presidency has disgusted a great many people, but at the same time it must be admitted that it has made Hill friends. He catches the unthinking by his free and easy way of addressing them, his promises to them, and the boldness of his manner of asking for their support and his promises of giving patronage when the time comes in exchange for their fealty and assistance.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER.

He Partook of the Growler and Then Fired the Fatal Shot.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 29.—Mike Brophy, aged 25 years, shot Tom Corbett in as coldblooded a manner as ever crime was committed, at noon yesterday.

Corbett was walking toward his home carrying a tin bucket of beer when he met Brophy, who pleasantly asked for a drink.

Corbett gave him the beer and he took a long drink, then handed it back.

With his right hand he pulled a revolver and shot Corbett through the heart. Corbett, it is alleged, had talked about Brophy but the men were supposed to be good friends.

AGAINST STRIKES.

San Francisco Manufacturers to Pull Together.

San Francisco, Feb. 29.—Representatives of nine of the largest shoe factories in the city met on Saturday and formed an association to oppose strikes.

To-day notices will be posted in all shops notifying the men if the strike now in progress against Kahn, Nicholsburg & Co. is not declared off by next Saturday morning the union men in the nine factories will be discharged.

JONES AND BOIES.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 29.—Major Jones, of the St. Louis Republic, was a guest of Gov. Boies Sunday, meeting him for the first time. This visit, it is believed, has some big political significance. He will be the governor's guest for a day or two. Iowa has not yet given up the idea of booming Blaine for the presidency, as was seen in an editorial in Clarkson's paper, the Register.

LOAD OF RIP VAN WINKLES

Coming From Russia to the United States.

One Hundred Years Behind the Times.

They Expect to Find Easy Sailing in the Land of Promise and Thriving Political Schemers.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 29.—The 300,000 Germans who are preparing to leave the Volga provinces of Russia for the United States are very different from the natives of Germany.

They are nineteenth century Rip Van Winkles, quaint in form, wearing garments of the style of a hundred years ago and having the furniture yet that their ancestors brought from Germany to Russia.

They are excellent people, industrious in their ways, and honest in everything, but entirely ignorant of the world as it really is.

The Russians look upon them as foreigners and are apparently willing to let them go. The Russian government cares for the Russians, while it allows the Germans, equally as needy, to starve.

The salaries of the German clergy and schoolmasters who are sober and faithful and in these respects in marked contrast to the Russians, have gone unpaid for years.

The people have been reduced to the necessity of using refuse for fuel and this makes the atmosphere of the villages at times intolerable.

TO MARRY TEN MILLIONS.

Jose De Roda to Wed the Widow Barrios.

New York, Feb. 29.—The Herald says that Mme. De Barrios, widow of the late dictator of Gautemala, is shortly to be married to Jose De Roda, a Spanish grandee, who arrived here yesterday to visit his future bride.

Mme. Barrios is noted for her wealth, beauty and accomplishments. Her fortune is estimated at $10,000,000.

PONTIFICIAL HIGH MASS

Celebrated by Bishop Horstmann on Sunday.

Philadelphia Turned Out in Large Numbers to Hear Their Favorite, Who is Soon to Leave Them.

Philadelphia, Feb. 29.—Rt. Rev. Ignatius F. Horstmann, the newly made bishop of the diocese of Cleveland, Sunday morning celebrated for the first time the pontifical high mass at the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul.

As on Thursday, the great edifice was densely crowded with devout and interested worshipers. The altars were richly decorated, and the beautiful music which was rendered by an augmented choir was of a high standard.

Archbishops Ryan and Elder occupied seats in the sanctuary during the solemn services. The deacons of the mass were Rev. A. A. Gallagher and Rev. John J. Rogers. The assistant priest was Rev. J. J. Elcock and the master of ceremonies was Rev. J. F. McQuade. The sermon was preached by Archbishop Elder, who took his text from Luke xviii, 31-43.

"The object of our Lord's coming on earth," he said, "was to give glory to his father and purchase redemption and salvation for men. His whole life was a tribute of glory and he was obedient even unto the death on the cross.

"Last Thursday we witnessed the elevation of a priest to the episcopal dignity, and to-day we behold that bishop exercising in the most solemn manner the chief functions of his office—offering that same sacrifice which was offered on the cross. He is fulfilling the command which Christ gave to his apostles: 'Do ye this in commemoration of me.' I say the chief function of the priesthood is the offering of the holy sacrifice of the mass because this is the center around which revolves all the other powers of the priest, even the additional powers of the bishop which the priest does not possess, such as ordaining priests, etc."

"The great work for which the priesthood is perpetuated is the offering of the eucharistic sacrifice. The new bishop will be God's instrument in ordaining and guiding priests who shall have the power to continue among the faithful the adorable sacrifice of the mass, from which all graces flow. It is good for us—priests, bishops and laity—to often meditate on this holy sacrifice, especially during the holy season of Lent."

The archbishop then explained the meaning and significance of a sacrifice, the greatest of all of which he declared to be glorifies God, he rejoices the angels, should be," he said, "who offer up this holy sacrifice. When a priest celebrates he glorifies God, he rejoices th eangels, he helps the living and obtains rest for the dead and makes himself a partaker of all that is good."

Turning towards Bishop Horstmann, he said: "And you, dear brother, whom God has just elevated to the office of bishop, often mediate on this great sacrifice. Ask God for wisdom in guiding the flock over which you have been just selected as chief pastor, in ordering priests who are to perpetuate the holy sacrifice of the altar. By doing this and fulfilling your office as a bishop of God on earth you obtain a place with the eternal priesthood in the world to come."

Bishop Horstmann will be tendered a reception to-morrow evening by the Catholic club. On Monday, March 7, he will leave Philadelphia for his new field of labor.

WAITING A TURN.

Indianapolis Filled with Excited People

Who Expect Trouble to Occur Before Night.

No Attempt Has Been Made to Run Cars.

And This Alone Has Prevented Bloodshed.

Mayor Sullivan Says He Will Maintain the Order of the City If He Has to Call on the State for Assistance.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 29.—The situation in the street car strike is terribly critical. All day yesterday and until late last night counsellors and advisers have persistently sought President Frenzel and the Street Car Brotherhood leaders and tried to gain from each some little concession that might avert further trouble.

At a strikers' meeting last night Mayor Sullivan explained that if the strikers defeated the city they would have the county to fight and ultimately the state and could not hope to win.

Many prominent citizens urged the men to cease from violence and exhaust every moral means.

On the other hand, President Frenzel has been importuned to make a slight concession, and how well these go-betweens are succeeding is evident by the fact that this morning not an attempt has been made to move a car.

President Frenzel cannot be found, but it is reported that he and several well-known public men, with representatives of the strikers, are now trying to patch up a settlement.

Despite the rain which is falling incessantly, the streets are filled with thousands of men, many of whom have ceased work to witness any outbreak that may occur.

Public sentiment is against violence.

WERE SWEPT OUT TO SEA

Three Hundred Fishermen Reported Lost

In a Storm Which Passed Over Oporto.

Human Beings Powerless in the Fury of the Gale Which Came Upon Them Without Warning.

London, Feb. 29.—The correspondent of the Times at Oporto describes the storm of last Saturday as one of frightful violence. He says that at least three hundred lives were lost—mostly of fishermen.

Whole fleets of boats were takenby surprise, swept out to sea, and sunk with all on board.

The steamer Elbe made several attempts to put to sea on Saturday, but failed, and only got out of the harbor on Sunday morning. On her way up the coast she saved 30 men in a sinking boat.

MISFIT STORIES.

Cannes, Feb. 29.—When Mr. Deacon was confronted by Mrs. Deacon yesterday the stories told by the husband and wife were so contradictory that the judge declined to release Mr. Deacon on parole. Friends of Mr. Deacon complain of this action, and also of the newspaper attacks on Mr. Deacon, who, they say, because he shot a Frenchman, is dubbed a cowardly assassin. Mrs. Deacon flatly denied that she was guilty of any impropriety with M. Abeille.

MISSING BODY FOUND.

Celina, O., Feb. 29.—The body of young Henry J. Kellerman was found floating on the water of the St. Mary's reservoir yesterday. He was seen by a farmer going with five other boys along the road that leads to the lake.

HAVE FORMED A MINISTRY

M. Loubet Has Collected a Cabinet.

The French Press Looks on the New Body With Considerable Coldness.

Paris, Feb. 29.—After the unsuccessful attempt made by M.'s Rouvier, Constans, Ribot and Bourgeois to form a ministry to replace the one that resigned last week in consequence of the chamber of deputies refusing to vote confidence in the government, M. Loubet, who was summoned yesterday to undertake the task, has succeeded in organizing a cabinet which is made up as follows:

M. Loubet, president of the council and minister of the interior.
M. De Freycinet, minister of war.
M. Ribot, minister of foreign affairs.
M. Bourgeois, minister of public instruction and the fine arts.
M. Rouvier, minister of finance.
M. Develle, minister of agriculture.
M. Roche, minister of commerce.
M. Ricard, minister of justice and public worship.
M. Viette, minister of public works.
M. Cavalgnac, minister of marine.

M.'s De Freycinet, Ribot, Bourgeois, Rouvier, Develle and Roche were members of the former cabinet, in which they held the same portfolios which they will hold in the new ministery.

The new prime minister is a staunch moderate republican. The members of the new ministry waited upon President Carnot at the Palace of the Elyse Saturday evening.

The new cabinet meets with a cold reception from the press. The conservative and radical journals agree in saying that the new cabinet is composed of the same elements as the preceding cabinet; that it must, therefore, have a policy that has already been disapproved by the chamber, and that the cabinet cannot last long. The Republique Francaise and Siecle condemn the exclusion of M. Constans from the new cabinet as the result of an intrigue.

The constitutional right party, now comprising 40 deputies, has formally decided to accept the republican form of government.

He was convicted and fined $25, costs and 30 days. His wife was also fined $20 and costs for disturbance.

CATHOLICS

Will Not Be Held to Observe the Usual Lenten Obligations.

It has been the custom to read the Lenten obligations in the Catholic churches on the Sunday preceding Ash Wednesday. However, yesterday, the day in question, in accordance with the edict issued from Rome, it was declared in the local churches that on account of the prevalence of the grip, Catholics will not be requested to observe these obligations as in former years.

DATE CHANGED

For the Social of the Ladies' Union of the Unitarian Church.

The day set for the social of the Ladies' union of the Unitarian church has been changed to Friday afternoon next so as not to interfere with the University Extension lecture. The social will be held at the residence of Mrs. A. H. Hathaway, 1204 Washington street. The ladies will be present in the afternoon and the gentlemen are expected at 6 o'clock, when supper will be served.

THE BUILDERS' EXCHANGE.

A Meeting To-morrow Evening—Furniture To Be Purchased.

Saturday evening, the board of directors of the Builders' Exchange, met for the purpose of electing a secretary, but the matter did not come to a head. Until a secretary is elected, Mr. John Stolberg will act in that capacity. A committee was appointed to purchase furniture for the rooms. Another meeting will be held to-morrow evening.

NEW SINGER IN TOWN.

St. Francis de Sales Has an Important Addition to Its Choir.

Mrs. P. Monks, wife of Manager Monks of the Erie Dispatch, this city, is the latest addition to the choir of St. Francis de Sales' church. Mrs. Monks has a soft, powerful soprano voice, which shows careful training and cultivation.

The lady sang yesterday at high mass, and many were the words of praise heard for the new singer. Mrs. Monks is an important addition to Toledo musical circles, and lovers of good singing are to be congratulated.

MARTIN MULLINS DEAD.

The deceased was a man of limited education, but of such sterling honesty that everyone with whom he had dealings reposed in him the utmost confidence.

MANAGER MURPHY RESIGNS

His Position in the Local Office of the Adams Express.

James A. Murphy, manager of the Adams Express company in Toledo, has resigned his position, to accept a similar one, though more remunerative, with the same company in Cleveland.

During the residence of Mr. Murphy and his family in Toledo they have made many warm personal friends who will learn of their proposed departure with regret. He came here from Cleveland a little over a year ago and is looked upon as one of the company's most trusted employes.

LOOKS LIKE COL. BUNKER

For Receiver in the Claflin-Miller Trouble Now in Court.

As was stated in the Bee some time ago, the parties in the case of the Claflin Paving company against Miller could not come to a conclusion as to the appointment of a receiver.

Judge Pugsley solved the problem today. He called the parties into court and submitted two lists of five names each, the same names being on each list. He then suggested that they strike off four of the names and agree to accept the name left. This was agreed to, and the names were struck off, and the name of Col. H. S. Bunker was left.

TOLEDO BUTCHERS

Elect Officers for Their Association—A General Invitation.

A meeting of the Toledo Butchers' association was held yesterday afternoon at Turner's hall, when a permanent organization was effected. Nearly seventy members were present. The following officers were elected yesterday: President, Henry Weber; vice-president, William Reineke; secretary, Andon Haile; financial secretary, L. Eirman; treasurer, Henry Hildebrand; trustees, Jacob Hersie and Wm. Hoffelder; doorkeeper, John Bussong.

FOURTH WARD CANDIDATE

For Street Commissioner—An Effort to Bring Out Louis Steuer.

Several of the friends of Mr. Louis Steuer are urging him to make the race for the democratic nomination for street commissioner, and it is thought he will yield to their persuasions. Mr. Steuer is tally clerk for Berdan & Co., and is an active and popular democrat. He is a resident of the Fourth ward, and was born and raised in Toledo. Mr. Bower has proved such a dismal failure as street commissioner that with a judicious nomination and united action there would be little difficulty in defeating him. From what Mr. Steuer's friends say of him, he has the necessary qualifications to make an efficient commissioner, and backed by the unanimous sentiment of the Fourth's voters, he would undoubtedly prove a winner.

THE COMEDY SCHOOL.

The Profits of the Performance—The King's Daughters Thankful.

The comedy School, presented by local talent, cleared nearly $300 for the Day Nursery Circle of the King's Daughters.

The ladies of the King's Daughters wish publicly to express their most sincere thanks and gratitude to every one who gave so much time and hard work in preparing School for its presentation on Friday last. They also wish to thank the Mathias orchestra for its excellent music and the ladies and gentlemen who bought tickets but did not attend the performance.

They desire specially to thank Mrs. Dr. Scheble, knowing that it was only through her kindness and untiring efforts at rehearsals and at the performance that the play was given so successfully.

THE WORD OF GOD.

Prof. D. M. Fisk Discusses the Same Before the Preachers.

The usual bi-weekly meeting of the Pastors' union was held this morning, there being a good attendance. Rev. D. M. Fisk was the essayist, and although he did not confine himself strictly to a written essay, yet his subject was handled in a thoroughly practical manner, which was intensely interesting. His subject was, "The Word of God," and he presented the following points, illustrating and discussing them: First, "That God has not left Himself without a witness in all provinces in the universe;" second, "The whole, only, is the key to any of its parts;" third, "Man is at once the meeting ground, the interpreter and joint creator of the miracles of the widest universe;" fourth, "The progression in nature is a type of the progression in all existence;" fifth, "Every thought and act intergrades all the universe."

The subject will be discussed at the next meeting, two weeks from this morning, at 10:30 o'clock, at the First Congregational church.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

The Committee Arranging for a Demonstration.

The committee on arrangements for the parade of Catholic societies on St. Patrick's day met again yesterday afternoon in Friendship hall.

In the absence of Chairman John O'Grady, Mr. T. P. Degnan presided.

The various committees reported progress.

The election of a grand marshal was again postponed, and the line of march will be perfected at a meeting of the committee to be held Thursday evening.

The following were appointed a committee to call on the various clergymen of the city, with a view of having them participate in the parade: St. Patrick's and St. Mary's, Mr. Thomas Degnan; Immaculate Conception, William Hanlon; Good Shepherd, St. Louis and Sacred Heart, William Leddy; St. Joseph's and St. Hedwig's, Edward McCarty; St. Francis de Sales', William Sapp; St. Peter's, Frank Bartley; St. Anthony's, Joseph Fournier.

Another meeting will be held at Friendship hall next Sunday.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Goes the Natural Gas Bond Injunction Case.

In the natural gas bond injunction case, Judge Pugsley this morning entered a decree for the defendants. The case was submitted to the court without argument by the parties, in order that the case might be appealed and a speedy decision arrived at in common pleas court. The case will be heard in circuit court on next Monday morning.

THE CITY CONVENTIONS

Will Have to Be Called Earlier Than Generally Fixed.

Owing to the fact that justices of the peace must be nominated this spring, the provisions of the state law will govern, hence it will be necessary to call the conventions of the parties not later than March 21. This date, therefore, will probably be fixed by the democratic city committee at the meeting to-night, and the republicans will have to follow suit.

WILLIAM WILMINGTON.

His Death This Morning at the Age of 73.

Another Toledo veteran joined the silent majority this morning, in the person of Mr. Wm. Wilmington, who had reached the age of 73.

For years Mr. Wilmington was an active business man, and erected the car shops which dotted the Fifth ward. Later he was the moving spirit in the Wilmington car works, and was the patentee of the wheel which goes by his name. He was a man of much push and energy in his day, and had a character for honesty and integrity in all his dealings.

THE DAY NURSERY.

Meeting of the Circle on Saturday Afternoon.

The ladies of the Day Nursery circle met Saturday afternoon, with Mrs. Woolson as president pro tem. There was a good attendance and considerable business of importance was transacted. Thirteen children have been cared for during the past two weeks. Mrs. Worel, of Maumee, was present and stated that the ladies of that place had made 26 yards of carpet for the nursery. Though no full report of the result of the "School" entertainment could be had as yet, it promised to be a financial success and the circle desire to express their thanks to Mrs. Stephen A. Trowbridge for managing the entertainment, and to all who participated in and helped to make it a success. The next meeting will be held at the nursery March 12, at 2:30 p. m.

He has been ill about four months, of a complication of diseases, terminating in consumption. His wife, who was a sister of Mrs. L. W. Burbank, of this city, died a number of years ago. CHICAGO WILL NOT WEEP

Because W. Woodall, M. P., Was Not Pleased.

An Englishman's Views of the Western Metropolis.

He Is Pained on Account of the Independence and Social Standing of Our Working People.

London, Feb. 29.—W. Woodall, M. P., is sending a series of illustrated articles from America to the London Daily Graphic. In describing Chicago he says that the core of the city has expanded in an upward direction, and that buildings 20 stories high are made possible by "lifts" for business and other purposes. He instances the Chamber of Commerce building as an example.

Mr. Woodall considers the overhead wires a grave danger in the business parts of Chicago. He regards Chicago, on the whole, as unpleasing in its impression on the British eye and in no respect equal to London or even to Liverpool. There are no buildings like Windsor Castle or tower of London to throw the glamor of history and romance over the great meat dressing establishments and many of the common people cannot be distinguished from the superior classes in appearance.

There is a general air of independence about them that surprises the visitor from Britain.

Mr. Woodall does not approve of the electric lights, which, he says, makes the byways all the darker by their brilliancy on the main thoroughfares.

THE NEW ELECTION LAW.

Secretary Ryan is Ready to Report.

Important Changes to be Made in Counties—The Large Cities to be Left as They Are.

Columbus, Feb. 29.—(Special)—Secretary of State Ryan, acting as an advisory member of the legislative joint committee, appointed to consider the various bills introduced affecting the Australian ballot law, embodying all amendments deemed advisable into the bill, has completed a draft of the measure.

The secretary, who is well posted on the workings of the law, proposes some radical changes that will, it is almost certain, be adopted by the committee tomorrow night.

The essential part of the changes provided for is the abolition of all the county election boards and the transferring of the duty of contracting for the printing and arranging for the distribution of tickets to the county clerks, who also receive the returns that are made to the boards under the existing law.

Certificates of nomination are to be filed with the county, corporation and township clerks. None of the city boards of election now in existence are to be disturbed, they being left to perform the same duties imposed by the existing statutes, except that at the November election the vote is to be canvassed by the county clerk and two justices of the peace.

The ballots are to be preserved for one year instead of being destroyed as at present provided.

Only two methods of voting are permitted under the proposed amendments. A cross mark at the left of the name of the party will show the elector desires to vote a straight ticket.

If it is desired to vote a mixed ticket, then the voter must place his cross mark before the name of candidates for whom he desires to vote.

This will simplify the matter of voting, as under the existing law there are four methods of marking the ballots, which lead to sure complications, and showed up in the three contested election cases that have been before the general assembly since the session commenced.

The present law makes no provision for placing the names of the presidential candidates on the state ticket, but the amendment makes it obligatory for them to be put on each ticket, with the names also of the vice presidential candidates, in addition to the party device.

It is estimated that the abolition of the county boards will reduce the expenses not less than $25,000 annually.

The salary and incidental expenses of these boards last year were $37,031.54, while the total cost of inaugurating the new ballot law was $205,436.39.

With $25,000 cut off for county boards and the saving in the number of booths the total expenditure for the next election, it is believed the total cost will be reduced from $75,000 to $100,000.

Mr. S. G. Derry
Of Providence, R. I.,

Widely known as proprietor of Derry's Waterproof Harness Oil, tells below of his terrible sufferings from Eczema and his cure by

HOOD'S
Sarsaparilla

"Gentlemen: Fifteen years ago I had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which was followed by eczema or salt rheum, breaking out on my right leg. The humor spread all over my legs, back and arms,

A Foul Mass of Sores,

swollen and itching terribly, causing intense pain if the skin was broken by scratching, and discharging constantly. It is impossible to describe my suffering in those years of agony and torture. I spent in futile efforts to get well, and was discouraged and ready to die. At this time I was unable to lie down in bed, had to sit up all the time, and was unable to walk without crutches. I had to hold my arms away from my body, and had to have my arms, back and legs bandaged by my faithful wife twice a day.

"Finally a friend who was visiting at our house, urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I began by taking half a teaspoonful. My

Stomach Was All Out of Order

But the medicine soon corrected this, and in six weeks I could see a change in the condition of the humor which nearly covered my body. It was driven to the surface by the Sarsaparilla, the sores soon healed, and the scales fell off. I was soon able to give up bandages and crutches, and a happy man I was. I had been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for seven months; and since that time, nearly two years, I have worn no bandages whatever and my legs and arms are sound and well.

The Delight

of myself and wife at my recovery it is impossible to tell. To all my business friends in Boston and over the country, I recommend from personal experience." S. G. DERRY, 45 Bradford street, Providence, R. I.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

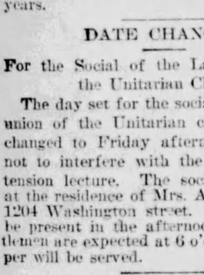
If you are Bilious, take Hood's Pills.



Plain enough—the way to a clear complexion, free from blotches, pimples, eruptions, yellow spots, and roughness. Purify your blood, and you have it. With pure, rich blood, an active liver, good appetite and digestion, the hue of health follows. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives you all of them. It is the blood-purifier. There's no lack of them, but there's none like this. It's guaranteed to accomplish all that's claimed for it. In all diseases arising from torpid liver and impure blood, it benefits or cures, or the money is refunded. With an ordinary medicine, it couldn't be done. But this isn't an ordinary medicine.

It is the cheapest blood-purifier sold, through druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

The "Discovery" acts equally well all the year round.

That's the kind of medicine to try.

MORE ARMORY BONDS.

Mr. Griffin Introduced the Bill To-Day.

Henry Watterson Drops Into Columbus and Talks on National Politics.

Columbus, Feb. 29.—(Special)—Representative Griffin this afternoon introduced a bill authorizing the additional issue of $12,000 in bonds to finish the armory in Toledo.

Watterson on the Candidates.

Hon. Henry Watterson passed through here this morning from Westerville, where on Saturday night he delivered a lecture on "Morals and Money."

In speaking to a Bee on the presidential candidates he said: "It would be suicidal for the democrats to nominate either Hill or Cleveland."

It should be a western man and he was in favor of Senator Carlisle.

Boies, Palmer and others mentioned would surely win, as all things point towards the election of the democratic candidate.

McKinley would make a strong man for the republicans, but Harrison is the logical candidate and will be renominated and defeated; in fact, any republican will meet with that reception this fall, according to Mr. Watterson.

Resignation Accepted.

Governor McKinley has accepted the resignation of the Cleveland insane asylum trustees, except J. M. Waterman, democrat, and it is more than likely he will be on the new board.

The Reverend Gentleman Thinks Justice Should Have Prompted Its Publication with the Letter.

New York, Feb. 29.—Father Doucey declines to talk about Secretary Blaine's statement concerning the marriage of J. G. Blaine, jr., but says it would have been only fair if the secretary had included Father Doucey's reply to his letter in the documents published.

SUPREME COURT DECISION.

The Worsted Schedule and the Contract Labor Clause.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The supreme court of the United States has decided in the worsted schedule case of the United States v Ballin, Joseph & Co., from the circuit court of New York, that the law is valid. The decision upholds the power of the speaker of the house to count a quorum under the rules of the last house.

The court also decided that the contract between the vestry of the Trinity church and Rector Warren did not violate the spirit of the anti-contract labor law, and the judgment of the circuit court of New York, imposing a penalty of $1,000, was reversed.

MORE DYNAMITE IN PARIS.

Bomb Found in the Hallway of a Residence.

A Servant of the Princess de Sagan Wounded and the Beautiful Palace Considerably Shaken Up.

Paris, Feb. 29.—The Faubourg St. Germain, one of the most aristocratic quarters of Paris was thrown in a state of confusion and excitement this morning by the explosion of what is believed to have been an infernal machine at the palace of the Princess De Sagan. It seems that a servant who was sweeping the doorway noticed two strange looking iron tubes fastened together in a corner near the door. She swept them out, and falling down two steps they exploded with a shock which rendered the servant insensible and shattered a number of fine windows.

It is believed that the explosion was the work of an anarchist, though there seems to be no reason why the Princess De Sagan's residence should have been selected as the scene of the exploit.

THE M'KINLEY BILL.

It Has Been Held to be Constitutional.

The Omission of the Tobacco Rebate Clause Did Not Impair the Legality of the Whole Measure.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The McKinley tariff act was declared to be constitutional by the supreme court of the United States in a decision rendered by Justice Harlan to-day.

The cases on which the decision was based were those of Marshall Feld, of Chicago, and of New York merchants who protested against the payment of duties on certain woolen dress goods and other importations on the ground that the McKinley bill was not a legal and constitutional enactment, by reason of omission from the enrolled bill of the tobacco rebate clause, agreed to in conference and contained in the bill when it passed both houses. The court holds this omission does not make the bill illegal.

A MAINE WOODS TRAGEDY

An Old Indian with Many Crimes on His Hand.

Twenty-Eight Victims of Mrs. Jarret's Soda Box.

Two Persons Dead and Four Physically Wrecked to Satiate the Grudge of a Noted Half-Breed.

Patten, Me., Feb. 29.—The story of the mysterious poisoning of twenty-eight persons living near Grand Lake was recently published. They had eaten bread made with soda from the same box, resort to which was had by the neighborhood when snow blockades had made the baking ingredient scarce.

It was supposed that some deadly substance, used by Peter Jarrett, a hunter, in killing game or curing furs had found its way into the box by accident.

Since then it has been discovered that the poison was arsenic and circumstantial evidence seems to indicate that it was put in the box of soda by John Francis, of Olamon, an Indian hunter and guide, to pay off a grudge.

Several years ago Peter Jarrett, a French Canadian, accompanied by his wife and two children, went to Grand Lake, about twenty miles northwest of Patten, and erected a camp.

In the spring of 1891, he, his wife and children began to lose their excellent health. Their appetites were gone, they often retched and vomited, their limbs commenced to swell and their extremities became paralyzed and numb. At last Jarrett became unable to drag himself around and lay upon his bed, a swollen, disfigured being.

The boy, a smart, bright little fellow, became sallow and withered. He could not walk and his fingers became clenched and stiffened so that he could not straighten them. He was a wreck.

Mrs. Jarrett, a mere shadow of herself, dragged about the house nervousless and numb. Her extremities were horribly swollen. Half a dozen times a day she would swoon.

On July 12 Jarrett died, and the poor woman, unable to work, was obliged to move out to Mount Chase and ask assistance from the town. They went to live with George Cunningham. Here, after a time, she and her children recovered their appetite and felt slightly better, although they were still crippled and helpless.

Among her scanty possessions was a cigar box partly filled with soda. In October she sold the box and its contents to Mrs. Nelson Ryder, who lived directly across the road. Richard Cunningham and wife live in the same house with Ryder. One day, early in December, Mrs. Cunningham found her soda box empty, and she borrowed a cupful of Mrs. Ryder. The cup was dipped down deep in the box.

She made some biscuit, they were eaten, and almost at once she and her husband became ill. There were pains in the bowels, swelling, headache and other grave symptoms. They thought it was the grip. Almost the same day Mrs. Ryder and her family became ill. Mr. Ryder was at work in the woods and he was called home. He ate heartily of some biscuit, and the next morning he, too, was evidently sick. The Ryders called their trouble the grip.

On February 7 Mr. Ryder's father, a man aged 70 years, after growing worse constantly, became insane and died. His legs were perfectly numb during the latter part of his illness, his neck and body were swollen and he had every symptom of arsenic poisoning.

About February 12 a great drifting snow storm commenced. That day Mrs. George Cunningham and Mrs. Ebenezer Cooper, neighbors, scraped the bottom of their soda boxes. Both sent to borrow some of Mrs. Ryder and the article was used in making the supper biscuit for both families. Half an hour after they had eaten, Cooper, his wife, child, mother and the schoolma'am staying with them were groaning and writhing in paroxysms of pain. All vomited excessively. Cooper was the first one of all the neighborhood to suspect that the soda was poisoned. He threw a biscuit to the dog and in a few minutes the animal was as deathly sick as any of them.

Just as soon as he could stir in the morning, Cooper rushed to Frank Swim's and found the family just setting down to eat some bread made with the tainted soda. They had borrowed some of him when he was on his way home the night before. After warning Swim's family, Cooper kept on to George Cunningham's and found that all the family, 11 in number, Mrs. Jarrett and children among the rest, had been seized with the most alarming illness soon after eating.

In his distress the Jarrett boy had taken a teaspoon of soda in water and then suffered still more horribly. Fortunately for them all, copious vomiting threw the horrible stuff out of their stomachs. This final catastrophe ended the use of the soda.

About three-quarters of a mile from the Jarretts' camp at Grand Lake, the Indian guide and hunter, John Francis, a middle-aged man, occupied a tumble-down hovel. For a time he was friendly with the Jarretts and often visited them and ate with them. At last he began to coax them to leave their camp and let him occupy it. He grew very pressing in his importuning, and became angry when they persisted in remaining.

One day the Jarretts were away from home. Later in the day Francis met Peter Jarrett and told him that he had been at his camp and had found no one there. Then he coaxed Peter to go away on a two days' trip with him and Peter consented.

The next day Mrs. Jarrett and the children were attacked by their serious illness. Peter was not sick until after he returned from his trip, when he too fell ill.

A few months previously Peter had bought five pounds of soda in Patten. His wife put three pounds in a clean cigar box in which she had formerly kept tea. They used the soda in the box as long as they remained at Grand Lake and all grew steadily worse.

Francis' actions during the period following his visit alone to the Jarrett camp were very peculiar. Although previously he had eaten frequently at their house, he now refused to partake of any food, although repeatedly invited to do so when he happened to be there at meal time. When he was asked to eat he always refused with a most sneering and mocking laugh.

It is known that the Indian had a poisonous powder at his camp and used it in tanning hides. He was at Olamon at last accounts. Dr. W. T. Merrill had a sample of the soda compound analyzed and it was found to contain arsenic in large quantities.

HERE'S A PROPOSITION

Evolved by Mr. W. H. Tucker for Factory People.

He Believes an Oil Pipe Line Would be a Good Thing for Those Who Must Have Cheap Fuel.

The question of fuel for the manufacturing interests of Toledo is an exceedingly important one. It is one of the principal factors regulating the success and welfare of manufacturing institutions. Cheap fuel is looked upon with far more favor, by the projectors of a manufactory seeking a location, than a free site, or even a big bonus. It is a settled fact that free gas or gas at any price, cannot be extended by Toledo as an inducement to manufacturers. Therefore, some other resources should be considered. It has been established that crude oil can be utilized as fuel, with as good results, and even less expense.

W. H. Tucker has given the subject considerable attention, and in conversation with a Bee, said:

"It is an undisputed fact that gas, as a fuel for manufacturers, in Toledo, is out of the question, and the next best thing should be done. It takes fuel to keep our mills and factories going, and the object is to get the required results at the least cost. The gas supply is scarcely adequate to meet the demands of domestic consumption. While the gas supply is short, there is immeasurable quantities of oil to be had in the same locality. In a great many instances the force of gas is supplemented by a good flow of oil. It has been proved by practical tests that crude oil can be used as fuel, to as great advantage as gas, and at no more expense. Under the circumstances, why shouldn't the manufacturers of Toledo adopt oil as a fuel? Of course it would cost more than gas to transport it by rail in car load lots. The way to do it, in my estimation, is to bring it in by pipe line, just as they do gas. It would be a big undertaking, to be sure, but it would be a paying investment in the end.

"An organization should be completed by all who desire to derive benefits from the line. The field is considerably higher than Toledo, and this elevation would prove a great saving, as gravitation would transport the oil, eliminating the expense of pumps. A storage reservoir could be established and the oil delivered to the consumers from that point by rail. The cost of the line could be divided equally among those interested, or a stock company could be organized and bonds issued. The fuel could then be delivered to the consumers at the field rate, and if so concluded, a light charge for transportation. I have given this subject some little thought, though I have not figured on details. I am satisfied, however, the project could be brought about to the interest of the factory and mill owners of Toledo."

COAL TO THE LAKE.

A Meeting to be Held in the Near Future,

At Which the Pennsylvania Roads Will Try to Lower Their Rate, to the Great Detriment of Ohio Coal.

Representatives of Toledo coal roads will go to Pittsburg Friday, to attend a meeting of the officials of Ohio and Pennsylvania coal handling railroads, to discuss the rates to the lake front. The meeting means much to the Toledo roads, for it is the desire of the Pennsylvania coal roads to lower their rate on coal from the Pittsburg district to the lake.

The Pennsylvania people are of the opinion that the rate from the Pittsburg district is too high as compared with the rates from the Ohio fields to lake ports. The Ohio operators know full well that it would be to their disadvantage to allow the Pittsburg coal to reach the lake front on the same basis as Ohio coal and the representatives of Ohio roads will not under any circumstances agree to any such arrangement. "It would be cutting our own throats," said an interested official to a Bee this morning. "Why, if this reduction were made by the Pennsylvania roads Ohio coal would have no show at all. We would only be able to sell our coal after the Pennsylvania producers had disposed of all they desired to sell. We will never sustain a rate the same as the Pennsylvania roads, but will always cut lower. The rate from the Pittsburg district is at present by agreement, 5 cents higher than the rate from the Ohio fields to the lake.

"The Pittsburg producers, it seems, did not ship very much coal to the lake last season and they mean to know the reason why and feather their own nests if possible the coming year. One reason why they did not send so much coal was due to the partial failure of the natural gas supply and the consequent increased consumption of coal in that district. However they seem to think that the rate has something to do with it."

CLEVER IN CROOKED WORK.

Oliver Curtis Perry Had Many Fields.

Scranton, Pa., Comes to the Front and Sings a Tale of Woe Due to His Evil Ways

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 29.—Oliver C. Perry, the New York express train robber, has just been identified by R. M. Lindsay and other leading business men here, as the perpetrator of swindling schemes as daring in conception and prompt in execution as his bolder train robbery.

For several months Perry was a clerk in a store here. He became engaged to a prominent and wealthy young lady residing in Hyde Park, securing several hundred dollars from her, under the pretext of furnishing their home, and in the interim forged checks on a half-dozen firms and got them cashed.

One evening Perry secured $300 and decamped, leaving his creditors and expectant bride in the lurch. His mode of operation was to hurry, after banking hours into a store close to that of his victim, without a coat or hat, with a pen stuck over his ear. He would say that his employer deposited rather close and would like to be accommodated by having the check cashed. Such courtesy had previously been extended and the checks were cashed.

C., J. & M. MATTERS.

A Clover Leaf Suit Revived in the U. S. Court.

The Lime Committee to Meet in Toledo—A Telegrapher Speaks—Movements of Railroaders.

The matter of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company came up again Saturday before Judge Ricks in the United States court at Cleveland on several propositions. The unsecured creditors of the road object to the second bid of the reorganization committee because of it being lower than the first. The first bid was sufficient to cover all the debts, secured and unsecured, against the road. The secured creditors, it is claimed, would leave the unsecured creditors out in the cold and the latter insist that the reorganization committee be held to the first bid to the extent at least of paying enough to satisfy the claims of everybody. It is also alleged that there is $55,000 in forfeitures in money deposited on bids made. The unsecured creditors think this should be paid to them. There are also exceptions to the master's report. The case was argued and submitted. The attorneys present were Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, on behalf of the syndicate; F. B. Swayne, of Toledo, for the receiver; Charles L. Price, of Lima; Emery D. Potter, of Toledo, and Alex L. Smith, of Toledo, for the unsecured creditors, and Gen. A. V. Rice, of Ottawa, and Walter B. Ritchie, of Lima, for the unsuccessful bidders for the central division.

Clover Leaf Suit Revived.

This morning there was filed in the United States district court an application for a rehearing and reversal of a decree by the Central Trust company, of New York, against the old Toledo, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad company.

It appears that the claims of the plaintiff for $40,000 was disallowed at a hearing held in Cleveland in 1887.

The document is a lengthy one, and deals in detail with the circumstances surrounding the case.

General Passenger Agents.

Toledo general passenger agents have received neat invitations from the Northern Pacific, the North Western, the Rock Island and the Burlington railroads, requesting them to accept the freedom of those lines to the meeting of the American Association of General Passenger Agents at Monterey, Cal., March 15. Mr. Hall of the Wheeling will be unable to go. Mr. Houk of the Ohio Central lines will be the only Toledoan present.

The Railway Telegraphers.

A prominent member of the railway telegraphers' association said to a Bee this morning: "It is my opinion that the bill to create the office of state examiner of railway telegraphers and providing for the examination of telegraphers will be laid on the table and buried so deep that it will never be resurrected, and I think I know whereof I speak."

To Meet at Toledo.

A meeting of the line committee of the Central Traffic association will be held in this city at the Boody house, Friday morning, at 10 o'clock. Representatives of the Springfield, Sandusky, Fremont, Fostoria, Bowling Green and Carey roads will be present.

Cinders Here and There.

F. N. Foster, agent of the Kanawha Dispatch, is up in Michigan.

The Toledo Superintendents' association will meet Wednesday, March 9.

General Manager F. B. Drake, of the C., J. & M., is in Cincinnati to-day.

C. L. Kimball, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania, is in town to-day.

A. H. Thorpe, paymaster of the W. & L. E., is at Norwalk, to-day as witness in a suit against the road.

John T. Gamble, traveling passenger agent of the Ohio Central lines, returned this morning from a week's trip down the road.

A meeting in the matter of the reorganization of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw railroad will be held in this city, tomorrow afternoon.

T. M. Peelar, general superintendent of the Ohio Central lines, is on his way to California, where he will spend a couple of months for his health. Mrs. Peelar accompanies him.

The Toledo Car Service association has had a busy month, in consequence of Bucyrus and Fostoria coming under its supervision. About 7,200 cars were handled with an average delay from time of arrival to departure, of a trifle less than one and three-fourth days.

MONEY IN SIGHT.

Canal Commission Discover State Lands in Paulding County.

The state land commission have unearthed a bit of work which has all the appearance of a job having its inception way back in the fifties. On March 2, 1850, the Ohio legislature enacted a law authorizing the sale of lands in Paulding county to actual settlers at $1.25 per acre, the conditions being that the purchasers enter upon the same and make certain improvements, running over a period of one year before a deed would be given, and then only on the affidavit of the purchaser that the requirements had been complied with. Under this act it is found that 600 acres of land were disposed of to individuals at from 25 to 35 cents per acre, instead of $1.25. As this land was under the water of the reservoir it was impossible to take possession and to comply with other conditions of the sale, although the parties obtained deeds. In 1888 the Paulding reservoir was abandoned. The commission has now ordered that the land be paid for at $1.25 per acre with 6 per cent. interest on the same from 1852. One man has already settled.

The commission has discovered another tract of 640 acres. In 1850 the general government ceded to Ohio, with other lands, section 36 in the Paulding reservoir. All other sections ceded from the Indiana line to Toledo were odd sections, and 36 being an even numbered one, was in some way overlooked. The commission has resurrected original patents from the government and for the 640 acres and appraised the land at $16,000, which will be sold for the benefit of the state March 11. —Columbus Journal.

THE STERLING WATER TUBE BOILER.

The merits of this boiler are being recognized in this market, and it is rapidly superseding all others, the sales for the past year in this city being three times that of all other types of boilers combined.

A wonderful record, and as the sales are to purchasers of the best class, who have given it careful investigation, it is good evidence that the claims made for it are well founded. The principal claims are, absolute safety, great economy, capacity and durability, and by its peculiar construction the use of impure water is not detrimental, as in other types of boilers.

Recent sales have been made by Arbuckle, Ryan & Co., to the Maumee Rolling Mill Co., 550 H. P.; the Wilson Spice Co., 125 H. P.; Toledo Consolidated Street Railway Co., 600 H. P.; and during the year, Toledo Bolt and Nut Co., 150 H. P.; Milburn Wagon Co., 300 H. P.; Toledo Water Works, 1,200 H. P.; National Milling Co., 400 H. P.; Bechtol, Carney & Co., 100 H. P.; Toledo Bee Co., 88 H. P. All in Toledo, besides large sales elsewhere.

A recent thorough test was made at Grand Rapids, Mich., of our 200 H. P. capacity by Prof. M. E. Cooley, chief of engineering department of Ann Arbor university, and the result is most gratifying to the friends of the boiler. Every claim made for it was more than verified in the result, and the high standing of Prof. Cooley is a guaranty of the correctness of the result as reported.

These boilers are in use at the water works in Cincinnati, and the recent report of the superintendent, Mr. Willis P. Sharp, states the the expense of supplying steam has been reduced from a total cost per day with tubular boilers of $357.52 to a total cost with the Sterling boilers of $248.37 per day, amounting to $39,839.75 per annum, and that the total saving by reason of economy and higher steam pressures resulting in greater efficiency of the pumps, etc., is $50,000 per annum. This great saving is wholly due to the efficiency and economy of the Sterling boiler.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market opened weak; corn steady. Liverpool wheat and corn quiet and dull.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 504,387 bu, compared with 265,235 bu on the same day last year.

Wheat Stocks—Toledo decreased 67,126 bu; New York decreased 322,539 bu.

Charters have been made at Chicago the past two days for over 200,000 bu wheat, 50,000 bu corn, 125,000 bu oats and 45,000 bu barley to Buffalo.

The Northwestern Miller reports the production of flour by 115 mills for the week ending February 20, at 442,400 bbls.

The Minneapolis Market Record of Friday has the following: Washington, Feb. 25.—Senator Washburn is still buoyant about his wheat option bill and says that he does not think there is much danger of its failure to go through both houses. The proposed amendment which was agreed upon by Sawyer, Pillsbury and others a week ago will be put on the house bill and reported when Mr. Hatch brings it into the house. Senator Washburn says the house option bill is the one that will be acted upon from the other body. The senator says he has made no canvass whatever of the senate and can not say how the vote will stand, but bases his expectancy of the passage of the bill upon what he says is a common-sense view of the subject under consideration.

An article in the Northwestern Miller, of similar tenor, indicates that there has been a secret compromise of some kind between the Minneapolis and Chicago exchanges and Mr. Washburn. Of course we wait for the facts, but we do not believe in compromising on principles. The question of the right of this people to do their trading on the great exchange of the country under such rules as intelligent and fair minded merchants may ordain, and without the tinkering and intermeddling of congress, should be fought out, and now is the accepted time to do it. The truth concerning the whole question began to be poured in upon congress, and no compromise should be made.

San Francisco Commercial Herald:—Mr. E. Richards has succeeded to the management of this valuable paper, and will increase its usefulness and reliability.

California Wheat Movement.—The receipts at San Francisco in the week ending February 17, equaled 303,507 bu. of wheat, and 26,485 bbls. of flour. The exports equaled 272,645 bu. of wheat and 18,359 bbls. of flour.

Exports July 1 to February 13 equaled 23,427,923 bu. of wheat, compared with 19,566,640 bu. in the corresponding period in 1891-92.

The receipts of wheat to-day again show a large aggregate. Minneapolis and Duluth furnish most of it, say 686,187 bu, and the other five points 200,437 bu.

The export decreases Saturday were wheat 187,719 bu and flour to an aggregate of 600,000 bu. The export of corn was 540,387 bu and of oats 63,120 bu. English markets as reported herein are dull and lower for both wheat and corn.

Markets To-day.

There is a first gun in the line of crop scares to-day from Topeka. A wet spell and a cold turn with the mercury 24 above, it is thought will hurt the wheat. The market will be subject to these reports now for a month or more.

The wheat markets in this country in the west are above a shipping basis by rail and ocean, but not so on the basis of a water freight in May next to the seaboard.

Even with decreased exportation just now, it will not be safe to sell wheat down too freely. The crop prospect in France is unsettled, and in India it is settled that it must be deficient. Our own crop starts from a condition out on the verge of uncertainty. It is backward, tender and weak, and the July sellers of winter wheat stand on slippery places.

The shipments of wheat from India last week equaled 780,000 bu. Previous week 640,000 bu. Since April 1, the beginning of the crop year, 51,798,000 bu., compared with 24,800 bu. in the corresponding period in 1891-2.

The visible supply of wheat decreased last week 364,000 bu.; corn increased 353,000 bu.; oats increased 246,000 bu.

Opening prices of wheat on the American exchanges were unexpectedly strong, and indicated that in the decline of Saturday dealers overdid it. There was a good demand for wheat and prices advanced 1c, but towards noon the markets began to weaken and the advance was lost and more.

Corn has been a little firmer most of the day, but closes weak in New York, and better in Chicago. Foreign markets close without special change.

In New York, February wheat closed 1 1-2c lower, May 1 5-8c. February corn 1-4c, and May 1-8c lower. February oats 1-4c lower.

In Chicago, February wheat closed 1-8c and May 1-2c lower. February corn 5-8c and May 1-8c higher. May oats 1-8c lower.

In Toledo wheat has been fairly active for this season. Opening prices were at Saturday's closing and the market advanced 3-4c, but it did not hold, and closed lower than Saturday. On the call May sold at 96c, and July at 90 3-4@90 1-2c. After the call May sold at 95 7-8@95 3-4c, advanced to 96 5-8c, and closed at 95 1-2c, a loss of 3-8c. July sold at 90 5-8@91c, and closed at 90c. August sold at 89@89 3-4 and 89 3-8c.

Cash wheat was very quiet, and but little was sold. No. 2 soft sold at 95@94 1-2c, a loss of 1-4c; No. 3 soft at 94@93 1-4c; weevily at 80c; smutty at 86c.

SPORTING.

It seems to be in the air that Toledo will yet have a ball club.

The Maher Fitzsimmons contest is attracting much interest in the city among the lovers of the manly art. Both men seem to be placed about evenly, although Fitzsimmons' go with Dempsey will tend to give him a shade the best of the odds. The Turf Exchange on Madison street will receive full reports of the contest by rounds Wednesday night.

On Tuesday evening, March 1, occurs the annual election of officers of the St. Cecelia Council, Branch No. 513, I. C. B. U. A large attendance of the members is requested.

Telephones, Editorial 355; Counting Room 102

TOLEDO, OHIO, FEBRUARY 29, 1892.

This ought to be the year for reducing instead of increasing the taxes of Toledo.

We will all know more about pumping gas when the committee returns from Pittsburg.

Griffin's judicial scheme is base politics. Whoever wants a good judiciary will vigorously oppose it.

We greatly fear those two angels of republican statesmanship, Flickinger and Heller, are lost somewhere in Columbus. The Governor ought to ring the alarm bell.

The republicans of Wood and Fulton may prepare themselves to fight under whatever congressional banner their ward-politics brethren in Toledo fly. The Griffin collar is the size at present.

Those who think of George William Curtis, the king of the Mugwumps, sitting enthroned in eternal cold and silent dignity, may be glad to know that he led the elegant minuet at the Staten Island charity ball Friday night.

The lesson of factional quarrels in New York should be heeded by other states. The democracy can not afford to divide against itself this year. We ought to win in November. We can do so by union and harmony, and above all must fly the flag of honest tariff reform.

Hundreds of workmen dismissed from the Pennsylvania iron mills and the wages of those who remain to be reduced, is the telegraphic report from Pitsburg this morning. Such illustrations of how the McKinley law protects labor are multiplying every day.

Senator Stockbridge, of Michigan, essayed to be very witty when he said "Cleveland could carry Canada." The man who could make friendly relations with our powerful and prosperous neighbor on the north is a man whom it behooves his own countrymen to honor as he deserves.

Mayor Emmick has been to Columbus to find out if the chief (prospective) of the free employment bureau should be a German, or able to speak that language. Inasmuch as the United States government sends envoys and consuls to foreign countries who are ignorant of the language there spoken, and as those applicants who cannot speak enough English to transact what business is necessary at the bureau are in a small minority, this great exercise of mind and muscle, and the injection of nationality into the matter at all seems quite ill-advised and unnecessary.

The supporters of the spendthrift 51st congress naturally complain of the do-nothing policy of the present body. No legislation is better than bad legislation. The bane of the country is too much law-making. If the 52nd congress can set the country straight, after the recklessness of its predecessor, give back to the people a portion of the rights of which they have been robbed and keep the country from financial discredit, it will accomplish a great deal. The hue and cry about nothing done is a post mortem defense of the republican body which did so much that was reprehensible and unwarranted.

The unfairness of a "gerrymander" is the same when perpetrated by either party, and neither party has, justly, any boast or excuse to make. The most conspicuous case has been the democratic state of New York, under republican manipulation these many years. It is the worst case on record, and the one of longest standing. Republicans are trying to distract present attention from Ohio by crying "look at Missouri." Missouri without a republican district is not so badly misrepresented as the doubtful state of Ohio under the present plan. The governor of Ohio has denounced such unfair procedure. It is a pity he has not the veto power to be able to show the depth of his sincerity. The utterance of President Harrison against the measure has no influence; was not designed to have. The man who silently accepted the Dudley manipulation of Indiana in his behalf, and who attempts to award its aiders and abettors; who has so far forgotten his pledges as to lead the Civil Service Reform league to say "by his own words his actions are condemned, and no expression of ours can add to the condemnation"—the man who stands thus arraigned means nothing at all when he deprecates the gerrymandering of states, except as it shall be applied to the wicked democrats. To call attention to the misdeeds of others to hide self guiltiness is very puerile, even in politics. Moreover, it is wasted ammunition the country understands perfectly well the situation.

Secretary Blaine has added another to his volume of public letters, and like many preceding ones, it would have been better left unsaid. To read between the lines, as one cannot help doing if they read at all, is to find the situation as it was before the explanation was made. James G. Blaine, jr., by his father's confession, is a weak young man. Mary Nevins was a silly girl, but the world is full of just such foolishness. It is altogether probable, the boy and girl in this case, as in hundreds of others, were equally blamable. That he was eighteen years old (or as the father puts it, seventeen years and ten months), and she twenty-one (months not stated) in no wise alters the case, except the fact be emphasized that she was an exceptionally shrewd miss and he an exceptionally stupid fellow. That Rector Ducey was blameworthy, as he is forcibly accused, cannot be denied. The falsehood of young Blaine about his age is the only defense he can offer. Finally, as appears by his letter, as the secretary was scarcely acquainted with his daughter-in-law, it would have been in better taste for Mrs. Blaine herself to have written the defense. By confession, she was so incensed at the young woman she would not say good morning, when she met her on the street. It is an unhappy affair all around even for the Dakota judge whose decision, on evidence, called forth the manifesto. And while sympathy will be expressed for the secretary and his family, no amount of plea over his distinguished name will change public opinion as to the coarse and brutal treatment of the invalid wife with her young child, by the husband and father.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That city merchants are trimming up for the spring trade.

That Judge Millard is not aching to appoint a new election board for Toledo.

That the market for wheat is squinting upward, though the figures may not go high.

That Will Harbeck positively denies the statement that he is a candidate for police clerk.

That fishermen expect to get in their twine at an earlier date than usual this spring.

That Fourth ward democrats will likely present the name of Louis Steuer for street commissioner.

That there are yet no tidings of the missing blank marriage licenses recently stolen from the court house.

That the Cornell Glee club will make merry in Toledo on the coming of March 10, under Star course auspices.

That all hope for a ball club for Toledo is not yet given up until after the western magnates put in an appearance.

That there are some fine attractions at the theaters for this week, thanks to the eagle eye of Manager Sam Brady.

That several Toledo Catholics will go to Cleveland to-morrow evening to attend the reception of Bishop Hortsman.

That honors are coming thick and fast to Col. Joe Bonner. He is now seriously talked of for the council from the Second ward.

That the Young Woman's Christian association is now located in entertaining quarters in the Bell building near the postoffice.

That Toledo's benevolent heart should open in answer to the governor's call for help for the sufferers in the Russian famine.

That the exchange of pulpits by the city pastors has a tendency to prevent members from church visiting to hear local divines.

That the next four weeks will witness some great skirmishing among the republicans who are desirous of securing a place on the city ticket.

That the advertisement for 50 girls at a whack to work in one of the factories in the city sends a cold chill down the backs of Toledo housekeepers.

That it is more than possible the democratic city convention will be held on the 23d of March, and that delegates will be chosen under the primary system.

That the members of the natural gas investigating committee find much more work on their hands than they anticipated, especially since there is no hope of fee or reward.

That the Y. M. C. A. has a rare treat in store for the members next Friday night in the shape of a mock trial, the participants in which are up to snuff in their line of business.

That Toledo is picking up in the matter of acquiring first class vessel property, and would do better if it were not necessary to list the boats from other points to escape excessive taxation.

That the influence of the removal of the cot and wringer works from Toledo will be felt in more ways than one. The change will be difficult to explain to those who have a desire to locate here.

That the improvements at the police matron's office are completed, but not in accordance with the suggestions from those who brought the much-needed work about, and some warm discussions are ahead.

The Officious Press.

There appears to be trouble in the ranks of the Michigan Patrons of Husbandry because the editor of the official organ persists in not spelling "used" "yoused" and "just" "goust," as sent in by the president of the order. One of the first objects of the patrons of husbandry is to put down the arrogance and impertinence of an officious press.—Kansas City Star.

Hint for the Reformers.

Assuredly there is only one fit man for the people's party to nominate for the presidency, and that is the Hon. Ignatius Donnelly. He would be irresistible on the stump. Why, he could even determine by means of a cipher the meaning of one of Hill's silver speeches.—Buffalo News.

"American Tail Twisters."

The projected visit of the King of Italy to Britain will strengthen the friendly feelings between the two nations. It will also be a source of keen regret to the noble order of tail-twisters in the states who have been predicting trouble between the two countries on account of their interests in Africa.—Toronto Empire.

A Tip From the People.

The trouble with Kaiser Wilhelm seems to be that he is too full of the idea of the divine right of kings. A few more "demonstrations" in Berlin are likely, at least partly, to set him right on this subject.—St. Louis Star Sayings.

Afraid of the Women.

Women are, in truth, incomprehensible creatures and capable of anything; by turns angels and demons. And there are men who would allow them to vote! I would sooner give children razors and revolvers to play with.—London Truth.

Ohio Always In It.

Governor Campbell will not take second place on the ticket; but as to first place he thinks that a western man would be extremely eligible, and Ohio is far enough west for him.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Bid for a Revolution.

The suppression of the philanthropic efforts of Count Tolstoi by the Russian government is a strong bid for a French revolution.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

CHIEF JUSTICE FULLER.

Reported That He Will Resign On Account of the Small Salary.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—A Washington special to the Daily News says that Chief Justice Fuller, of the supreme court, is seriously contemplating a step unprecedented in the history of that court—tendering his resignation—and that if a democrat shall be elected president he will probably resign shortly after the inauguration.

The reasons assigned are that he is yet a comparatively young man and does not care to go on the shelf, that the pay is inadequate to meet his living expenses, and that the work is hard and trying, leaving him little leisure.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Judge Duffy is home from Cuba and Sarah Bernhardt is going home to Paris.

If he hadn't permitted and omitted so much already Porter wouldn't have to admit errors in his census now.

President Eliot's treatment of co-education in his recent lectures on education in Boston, as well as of teaching women and women teachers, has provoked not a little criticism.

Mrs. Moses P. Handy has just completed a novel on southern life during and immediately subsequent to the war. She might turn it over to the major for "publicity and promotion."

The youngest of the prominent clergymen of America is said to be Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, son of President Eliot, of Harvard, and successor to Rev. Brooke Hereford's pulpit in Boston.

Jean Gerardy is a new juvenile prodigy with the violin. The recurrence of these youthful phenomena is apt to remind people of what Mr. Weller said were spectacles that did "violince" to his "feelins."

Blanche Roosevelt's blonde beauty is more admired than ever in Paris this winter. She generally goes about with an unfinished manuscript in her reticule and a look of innocent surprise on her infantile face.

Senator W. J. McConnell, of Idaho, one of the pioneers in the territory, says he got rich by raising fresh vegetables at Boise and buying and planting more land with the proceeds of their sale, while hundreds of disappointed gold seekers were leaving for the east.

To Rider Haggard is due some small debt of gratitude from every patriotic New Yorker for having discovered the American proverb: "Any river is deep enough to drown a fool." The argument in favor of filling up the Harlem is based mainly on the assertion that that river is "such a little one."

Miss Harriet S. Monroe has completed her dedicatory ode for the world's fair. It is noteworthy that whatever the women have to do with the Columbian exposition is done with very creditable dispatch, particularly in the building for their department, which is much nearer completion than the others.

The Duke of Clarence was an ardent admirer of Gladstone. On one occasion at the house of commons, when the venerable premier introduced his home rule bill, Albert Victor was so carried away by the eloquence of the great orator that he clapped his hands heartily, which was particularly noticed, as the etiquette of the house forbids such an outburst of enthusiasm.

DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT.

Sherman is Not the Man to Resign.

An Absurd Report Wired From Columbus.

If Foraker People Are Trying to Smoke Out Their Uncle John It Will be a Dismal Failure.

Columbus, O., Feb. 29.—Senator John Sherman, it is said, does not expect to serve out the term to which he was elected by the Ohio legislature last January.

From an inside official source it is learned that he has made up his mind to retire to private life.

The date of his retirement has not been fixed definitely, and it may be denied for the present that he contemplates taking such a step, but a few of Mr. Sherman's closest friends declare that it is a fact and that formal announcement of it will be forthcoming in due time.

A prominent Ohio politician said: "Senator Sherman will resign some time next winter, to take effect upon the 4th of March, 1893. The present legislature of Ohio will thus choose his successor, but his resignation will not be sent in unless it is pretty definitely ascertained who will be elected to succeed him. Naturally Mr. Sherman favors Secretary Foster."

FANNY DAVENPORT VERY ILL.

Completely Prostrated at the Close of Her Performance.

New York, Feb. 29.—Fanny Davenport, who has been playing in Cleopatra at the Amphion theater, Brooklyn, E. D., was taken seriously ill at the close of the afternoon performance Saturday.

She had been suffering from a severe cold, and was threatened with congestion, when advised by her physician to remain at her hotel in New York.

It was only with the greatest exertion that she continued during the afternoon. She was so exhausted at the close that she fainted, and, after being revived, was hurriedly conveyed to her hotel.

CHARGES AGAINST A CHIEF.

Dayton, O., Feb. 29.—Formal charges against Chief of Police Charles T. Freeman, whose conduct has been a subject of inquiry by the police commissioners on the allegation that he has been receiving hush money from gamblers, were filed by the mayor Saturday.

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS.

Sam T. Fisk's Great Financiering Exploit.

Noteman and Webster Only Get $10,000 Each,

And the Irrepressible Sam is Boss of the Situation—Strange History of a Great Scheme.

Sam T. Fisk promises to be as great a Napoleon of finance as Henry Ives, and his methods are somewhat similar.

The story of the Noteman burner patent and the way Noteman and Webster lost their grip on the project has just come to light, and reflects great credit on Sam T.'s financiering ability.

Sam, it is said, was the moneyed man of the enterprise. Contrary to an old-established custom the moneyed man has still the money, while the inventor has still his experience, minus his invention.

While the trio were in Washington a dicker was made whereby the company rights to the District of Columbia were sold for $30,000. Each held a third interest, and this would have netted them $10,000 each. Sam, it is said, deliberately kicked the deal over.

Sam was then appointed a committee of one to go to Chicago and sell the patent or organize a stock company. It is said that while in Chicago he sold a half interest for $50,000. Returning to Toledo it is claimed that he reported that the thing was a fizzle. He had offered Noteman and Webster $10,000 each for their interests, but now was hardly willing to pay that much.

Noteman dropped to $5,000, and Sam paid him cash on the spot. Webster, however, held out, and finally got $10,000 cash. Mr. Noteman says he still has a promise of the remaining $5,000.

Sam returned to Chicago, and in a few days organized a company with a capital of $5,000,000, of which he owns a third interest.

If there are any flies on Sam T., they are not quite discernable.

It is said on the other hand that Sam had not sold one-half interest when last in Chicago, and the deal has been a square one all around.

The end is not yet.

Mr. Noteman returned yesterday from Washington, but the dicker is dead.

ONE FACTORY GONE,

But Another Will Occupy the Ground,

So Says Mr. L. S. Baumgardner, and Work Will Begin on the Structure at Once.

The cot and wringer plant, or what was left of it, has been removed from Toledo and is operating to-day at Fremont.

The superintendents of four of the departments went to Fremont this morning to take charge.

While Toledo has lost this enterprise it will gain an industry just as extensive and important.

Mr. L. S. Baumgardner has completed arrangements to erect a building on the site of the cot and wringer works which were recently destroyed by fire. The structure will be 50 feet wide and 200 feet long, three stories high, and will be constructed of brick.

The building will be occupied by a substantial manufacturing concern, the details of which will be made public later on.

WHEN COAL WAS FIRST USED.

It is believed by some historians that coal was used by the Romans on the continent and by the Britons on the island before the arrival of Caesar. As early as 1234 Henry III granted a license to dig coal near Newcastle, but a few years later the use of coal was forbidden in London, the smoke being deemed prejudicial to health. In 1306 the London gentry petitioned the king against its use, declaring that, in spite of the royal order, certain malicious persons persisted in burning it. Coals began to be brought from Newcastle to London in 1381, during the reign of Richard II. By the year 1400 coal was commonly burned in London as a fuel, though 200 years later, in the reign of Charles I, its use was far from general throughout England. Anthracite coal, which, except the diamond, is the purest form of carbon known, was first used by a Connecticut blacksmith named Gore in 1768, and as a domestic fuel by Judge Jesse Fell, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1808.—New York World.

INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS.

The Garza War May Get Two Countries Into Trouble.

San Antonia, Feb. 29.—The Garza episode now appears to have become an issue between the people and the United States troops. Since the arrest of Gonzales, Garza's father-in-law, and the counter-charges made by him against the troops, Gonzales' grievance has been backed up by a still more serious affidavit made by J. H. Broeter.

Broeter alleges that various complaints are being made by many of the best law-abiding citizens in this portion of the state regarding the conduct of the troops of the United States army and certain persons who claim to be scouts and guides; that one Captain J. G Bourke, the commanding officer, has been especially complained of as having made promiscuous arrests of good citizens without apparent cause or reason, following such arrests with acts of cruelty and at times practicing and permitting acts of indignities.

A SENATOR'S WILL.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 29.—The suit to contest the will of the late Senator Joseph E. McDonald has been filed. The plaintiffs are Malcolm A., Malcolm S., Joseph E., and Jesse McDonald, and the administrator, Theodore P. Haughey, and the senator's widow, Josephine F. McDonald are the defendants.

The plaintiffs are a brother, Malcolm A., and three grandchildren of the senator, and they claim that the will admitted to probate last June is not the last will of the deceased, as it was unduly executed, being under the undue influence of Josephine F. McDonald.

RELIC OF THE TWEED RULE

Why J. H. Ingersoll's House Was Burned.

He Was in Jail and Needed Money.

A Friend Came to His Rescue and Lost All His Property in an Attempt to Aid Him

New York, Feb. 29.—A case of peculiar interest will be tried in the supreme court in the early part of next month, which will in the course of proceedings review some of the doings of Tweed and his famous ring and show the depth to which some men will stoop to gain their ends.

The case has been brought by Gugenheimer & Untermeyer, for Mrs. Ella Buckman, against Theodore P. Austin, the present owner of one quarter of her father-in-law's estate, on the ground that it was purchased in bankruptcy proceedings and that, while he is not charged with any criminal knowledge of an irregularity, she claims the bankruptcy was precipitated by a third party, who had intrusted certain pieces of property to her husband.

For five years previous to 1873 William H. Buckman conducted a ship chandlery business on South street. It had been left to him in trust for himself, wife and three children, subject to a life interest in the same for his mother, by his father, who died several years before. The business paid well, and Buckman supported his wife and family in good style.

During the contest of the authorities of this city against the Tweed ring, one James H. Ingersoll, was found guilty and sent to state prison for a term of years. About the time of the first excitement brought about by the exposure of the crooked work of Tweed and his fellow conspirators, Ingersoll transferred all his property to Buckham, who was his most intimate friend.

According to the story told by Mr. Love of counsel for Buckman, he went into bankruptcy upon his own application by the advice of Ingersoll, who, he claims, took care of his business. Buckman, it is alleged, was not bankrupt at the time, but made an assignment more to protect Ingersoll than himself.

His interest in his father's estate was estimated at that time to be worth about $50,000, and this was sold to William H. Paulding, who was said to be acting as an agent for Ingersoll and who, it is claimed, purchased the property for the small sum of $1, with the understanding that he was buying it in for Mr. Buckman. It never did revert to Buckman, or his wife or children, hence the suit.

The relations between Ingersoll and Buckman were exceedingly friendly, and when the former got into trouble and needed money to defend himself, Buckman, finding it impossible to dispose of his property, on account of the legal complications surrounding it, was compelled to act as a tool for the accused henchmen of Tweed.

After Ingersoll's sentence, Buckman was put to his wits' end to raise money, and was finally pursuaded to set fire to Ingersoll's country residence to obtain the insurance money, with which to set the machinery of law to work to effect his release.

The house was burned and everything in it was supposed to be destroyed. In a confession which Buckman is alleged to have made, he tells how he went to Auburn prison to see Ingersoll, and after relating the cordial manner in which he was received, the confession reads:

"What Ingersoll wanted to see me about was the burning of his house. He (Ingersoll) said: 'Make a sure thing of it.' He heard of the fire the next morning. I think he wrote me a letter regretting so much that the place had burned; hoped I hadn't suffered any loss myself; sorry I had hurt myself. (I had sprained my leg jumping out of the window.) I was to go to New York to see his father, and he would give me some money I wanted right away. Everything I had was burned up.

"I went back there and lived in a farm house. I lost all my clothing and a double-barrelled shotgun. My wife came to New York. She knew all about the matter. Before the fire I sent a half-dozen pictures to New York in my own name; they took care of them and I got them afterward. I sent two or three handsome chairs down. They were worth $75 or $100 apiece. They were all on the inventory. I took an inventory of everything in the house before the fire. I do not know whether the father knew about it. The brother knew about it. The brother is alive now. His name is Moses I. Ingersoll. He was one of the firm of Pottier & Stymus. He was treasurer there.

"I burned the house from the furnace flues. Ely sent up a lot of stuff from the factory packed in big packing boxes. The object was to send the excelsior. I had a big stock of kerosene. I got up a tremendous fire in the furnace and had it going two days and piled the excelsior in there like fun. The furnace was built after the house. The house was built by Gov. Clinton in 1805. We always said, in talking to the insurance men, that it was on account of those flues connecting one floor and another. It was very cold weather and a very windy night. I was alone in the house. The roof was yellow pine. His object in burning the house was to raise money."

Buckman is now living somewhere in New Jersey, and even his own lawyers have failed to locate him. Mrs. Buckman is living in this city, but just where her lawyers do not care to say. They, however, deny that she or any other member of the family knew of the incendiarism.

GLIMPSES OF THE ORIENT.

Rev. Dr. Quigley Lectured at Wheeler's Last Evening.

Interesting and Instructive Tour of Ancient Cities of the East—The Turk Denounced.

Wheeler's held a packed audience last evening to hear Rev. Dr. Quigley's lecture. His subject was "Glimpses of the Orient," and very interesting and instructive the reverend gentleman made it.

Mr. P. H. Sugrue, president of the Y. M. C. B. A., introducing the chairman of the evening, Judge Gilbert Harmon, briefly stated the circumstances under which the lecture was to be given. It was delivered at the request of a large number of citizens.

Judge Harmon referred to Dr. Quigley's first appearance to a Toledo audience at Wheeler's in 1886. He (the chairman) had predicted on that occasion that the reverend lecturer would have an influence for good on Toledo society. How well this prediction had been justified the public well knew.

Rev. Dr. Quigley, lifting a beautiful boquet from the stand, thanked the donor, and briefly thanked the audience for its appearance in face of the inclemency of the weather.

The lecturer proceeded to give in passing an account of his sickness in Rome during his visit there in 1889, and the resolution of himself and Rev. Father Lambert, of Rochester, to visit the orient. He gave a detailed and delightfully interesting sketch of the famous Roman road—the Apian Way, and a graphic description of a boating trip by night on the Adriatic sea.

All European nations, he said, have their subsidized steamboat lines, and many of the steamers are veritable floating palaces. They have not quite free trade over there yet, but are near it.

His description of the ancient cities of Corfu and Athens were graphic and instructive.

In connection with the independence of Greece, he paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Gladstone, who was the first to advocate freedom for that distressed country.

It was strange, the speaker said, that everywhere in his travels Englishmen denounced Gladstone and yet he was the greatest of them all. "I love him," he continued emphatically, "for the enemies he has made."

This repetition of Bragg's expressive sentence evoked much applause. His account of the customs, habits and condition of the inhabitants of the Grecian islands was at once interesting and entertaining.

Nowhere, save perhaps, in Ireland, is found such bewitching mountain scenery as in Greece. He would advise all in need of rest to go there.

"It often appears to me," said he, "that we all devote too much time to our occupations. The housewife, the tradesman, the mechanic, the professional man—all do too much physical work. The whole country is only half as large as Ohio. The products of the country are chiefly currants and olive oil.

Suicide, insanity and drunkenness is said to be unknown among the people. The poor live on one meal a day, while the rich get two. There are fewer illegitimate births in Greece than in any other country in the world. Some countries in Europe have a per centage of 22, while Greece has but 1 1-2, and Ireland comes second with 2 per cent. The Greek is always a patriot and an advocate of civil liberty.

The speaker incidentally referred to the alleged insurrection in Crete, and the ruses of the French and English fleets to spread the alarm. Crete has two glories. She glories in her perfection in the art of lying and in her hatred of tyranny. The Turk, he said, had no more right to Crete than he has to Toledo.

The crossing of the Hellespont and arrival at Constantinople were eloquently described. The speaker was fierce in his wholesale denunciation of the Turk. From the sultan to the meanest slave they are dogs—nothing more. Slavery still exists in Constantinople. He himself was offered a slave for $12, in Stamboul. It was Daniel O'Connell who said he would rather take his religion from Stamboul than his politics from Rome.

Dr. Quigley described the dress of the men and women and denounced the sultan's methods of marriage and living in unmeasured terms. Constantinople is full of dogs that are held sacred. The superstition exists that when the dogs go the Turks will also go. The dogs are the public scavengers, and there are several hundred unowned dogs in every block.

The speaker referred to an United States senator, who, in return for a promise of several American horses, was allowed by the sultan to spend a week in his palace.

The reverend gentleman promised that in the event of this senator ever seeking a public office he would feel it his duty to give his name and circumstances of the week's stay in the palace.

The Turks are fatalists. They say what will be will be, and there is no such thing as thankfulness or gratitude among them. It was to be. The Turkish carriers are simply beasts of burden. He saw a man carry half a ton of grapes on his back.

In conclusion the reverend speaker gave an interesting sketch of the trials and tribulations of a visit to the Russian port of Odessa.

Interesting Address by Mrs. Frances J. Barnes,

National President of the Organization—Many Good Points for the Work.

Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, national president of the Y. W. C. T. U., delivered an address at the First Congregational church last evening, and an audience that completely filled the great church listened to her with close attention. Mrs. Barnes talked for an hour about the splendid organization of which she is the head. Many good points were brought out by the speaker, and the local members received much inspiration for their work.

She explained the organization of the Ys, and described the work that is being done by the society in different large cities and states. Various methods are adopted in different sections of the country, but the one grand object prevails for them all, the elevation of the physical and moral standard and war against the demon of strong drink.

She told how the Ys have spread to various countries of the globe, and everywhere they are increasing rapidly. As illustrating the good work being done she related many incidents and accomplishments of the society, and she also paid a high tribute to the union of this city, which is the largest and one of the most effective anywhere.

Saturday Afternoon's Reception.

The reception given for Mrs. Frances Barnes Saturday afternoon by the Ys was a social success and a pleasant occasion. About 500 guests called during the afternoon, and after shaking hands with the charming lady and her assistants, were served with chocolate and wafers. Mrs. Barnes gave a short talk on the creditable work of the Ys, and stated that their influence for good was broadcast. She related several experiences which occurred while she was abroad, where people are usually expected to drink socially. Upon such occasions her glasses were turned down, and without being thought cynical she was soon provided with lemonade and other light beverages.

Miss Stewart delighted her friends by being present at this reception, but it was learned with regret that she anticipates resigning her position as president of the Toledo Ys on account of her editorial work, which will necessitate her being in Chicago. Miss Stewart has been a zealous worker, and she will be greatly missed in Toledo.

PUBLICLY ANSWERED.

Thanks Returned Through This Paper.

A Firm of the Highest Standing Replies to Its Ocean of Correspondents.

To the Editor of the Bee:

Will you kindly state in your columns that we desire to publicly and gratefully acknowledge the overwhelming correspondence which daily pours in upon us. The number of letters is so great as to render most difficult the separate and personal attention each one merits. They are from all classes and conditions of people, and their warm words of gratitude are such a source of pleasure to us we feel impelled to thus acknowledge them. We also desire to return our thanks for the kind words which have been said of us and the recommendations which have been made to others who have been or are now sufferers. The following extracts from letters, picked at random from a pile, are a fair sample of what the others contain:

One mother writes: "Your medicine saved my boy's life. My prayers are with you constantly, and I bless God that I ever learned of Warner's Safe Cure."

Another person, whose father was snatched from the grave when on its very brink, exclaims: "The happiness of this family is in your keeping, and we shall never cease to remember you in our prayers and best wishes."

Says another: "We are the more grateful to you because all hope had fled. The best physicians failed, and we expected to surrender our loved one but for your remedy. Warner's Safe Cure snatched him back from the grave, and has permanently restored him to health."

A mother whose child was nearly carried away, exclaims: "I don't know you; I perhaps shall never see you, but the image of a very benevolent man is constantly in my mind when I think of you, for you have done me and mine an act of kindness that I can never repay, and I never expect to see the like again. God bless you and give you prosperity in all your ways."

One poor young lady, who was the victim of consumption, says: "You cannot imagine the gratitude that wells up in my heart as I think of what your medicine has done for me. I never expected to recover, although I would not acknowledge this to myself nor to my friends. But now that I have gotten rid of the lung trouble, which I found was caused by uric acid poison in the blood, my only thought is one of gratitude to you, that you, Mr. Warner, determined to spread the merits of your wonderful preparation before the world."

Another one writes: "My fortune may slip away and I may lose my friends; my health may disappear, but I shall never cease to praise you that you ever put this remedy upon the market, for it has done for me what no other person living could do, and what no one, before the deed was accomplished, believed could be possible. I feel that I have my life as a special gift from Providence through your hands, and you cannot imagine the profound gratitude I feel toward you."

It is occasion for gratitude to be the recipients of such letters, and to feel that we have contributed so much to the happiness of the world. Realizing this fully, we again desire to return our thanks.

Most sincerely,
H. H. WARNER & CO.

THE MORNING HILLS.

I.

He sits among the morning hills,
His face is bright and strong;
He scans far heights, but scarcely notes
The herdsman's idle song.

He cannot brook this peaceful life
While battle's trumpet calls:
He sees a crown for him who wins,
A tear for him who falls.

The flowery glens and shady slopes
Are hateful to his eyes:
Beyond the heights, beyond the storms,
The land of promise lies.

II.

He is so old and sits so still,
With face so meek and mild,
We know that he remembers naught
Save when he was a child.

His fight is fought, his fame is won,
Life's highest peak is past;
The laurel crown, the triumph-arch,
Are worthless at the last.

The frost of age destroys the boy—
The loud applause of men
Falls feebly on the palsied ears
Of threescore years and ten.

He does not hear the voice that bears
His name around the world;
He has no thought of great deeds done
Where battle tempests whirled;

But evermore he is looking back,
Whilst memory fills and thrills
With echoes of the herdsman's song
Among the morning hills.

HENRY COUNTY AFFAIRS.

The Sudden Death of Postmaster Jones,

Who Passed Away at Napoleon Sunday.

Six Full-Fledged Candidates in the Field to Succeed Him—The Sherman-Foraker War Over Again.

Napoleon, O., Feb. 29.—(Special)—Postmaster David M. Jones died yesterday morning at his residence on Washington street, of peritonitis and kidney trouble, after a sickness of 10 days. He was in the 57th year of his age. The funeral takes place to-morrow from his late residence.

Mr. Jones was one of the most prominent republicans and a most respected citizen. He received his appointment as postmaster some two years ago and it may be truthfully said that although he received his office at the hands of the republicans, he was to a great extent the choice of both democrats and republicans.

He was a republican, but not to a bitter partisanship degree, thus possessing hosts of friends on both sides of the political fence.

He served all through the war as first lieutenant, and his war record is a creditable one. Service in the war left him with a crippled arm. He has figured more or less before the people since in public enterprise.

He was always known as an ardent G. A. R. man, having served as commander of the Choate post several terms.

During his term as postmaster here he has made a most exemplary official, giving satisfaction to all, regardless of political complexion and it is with the greatest regret that Napoleon loses him as a citizen.

He had one of those dispositions that always had a kind word for everybody and many are they who will mourn his demise. He leaves a wife and large grown up family.

Who Will Be His Successor?

Who his successor will be is a matter of no little conjecture. Already six leading republicans have been mentioned, all of whom it is claimed, will make the race.

These six are: Hon. J. B. Couch, T. Clewell, D. W. Frease, Samuel Martin, Capt. Richards and G. Russell.

Mr. Couche's chances are good, having always been a republican, and while a member of the state decennial board of equalization made many friends among the big illuminers at Columbus, who will figure more or less in the appointment as it must come through Sherman, the Sixth district being represented by Dennis Donovan, a democrat.

Frease, Martin and Richards are Grand Army men and as far as this goes stand on an equal footing, but as far as acquaintance and other political labor is concerned Couche is several laps ahead.

The opposition, however, has taken form in the assertion that he bitterly opposed Sherman because the Frigid Senator refused to endorse him at the time Boothman endorsed Mr. Jones. This is not true however as he did not take any pronounced position for either Foraker or Sherman.

T. Clewell is neither a soldier nor has he any political record but is very popular and would make a good P. M.

George Russell steers the republican organ of the county, but many think that his chances for the plum are the most evanescent, as he steadfastly refused to take any standpoint on the senatorial question through his editorial columns, although constantly being importuned so to do by contemporaneous sheets.

In fact, the only recollection that exists of the subject being mentioned was through the guise of a correspondent, which communication decidedly favored Foraker.

It is also maintained by many that the other candidates have never enjoyed much favor for political labor, whereas Russell served three years in the auditor's office at a salary of $6,000 per annum and now has the county organ—a very remunerative sheet.

There are many who would be well pleased with the appointment of Mrs. Jones to at least fill the unexpired term of her husband, to which, from a standpoint of justice, she is entitled, but it is doubtful if the local republicans will give the rights of the widow a single thought in their greedy scramble for the office.

Some of candidates have already begun to urgently work up their cases by telegraph. As a sort of leader up to spring politics the postoffice war is a poor success—in fact it will absorb all the interest that has hitherto accompanied the spring canvass.

LARGE SALARIES.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat's Editorial Views.

The retiring president of the New York Life Insurance company has been receiving a salary of $75,500 per year, and is to be paid $37,000 annually for the rest of his life. It is likely that his successor will be even more liberally dealt with, as he is a man of superior ability and reputation in the insurance line of business. Other large corporations, particularly those which depend for success upon the popular confidence in the intelligence and integrity of their management, pay similar salaries to their leading officers. It looks like extravagance to give such large sums to individuals when they cannot possibly earn that amount of money by practical service; but there is a sensible and conclusive reason for expenditures that thus seem to be contrary to ordinary rules of business economy and propriety. The men are not paid so much for what they do as for what they are. They have a standing for honesty and capability that is worth a great deal to the institutions with which they are connected. Their names have a definite commercial value. They give an advantage to the corporation that is of decided importance, and the money that they receive is but a small part, after all, of the total sum that is realized through their guarantee of the soundness of certain enterprises.

It would be very easy for these big corporations to find men who would perform the actual work for much smaller salaries, but that would not be really a saving. On the contrary it would be a loss in the long run. The cheaper officials would not inspire the same confidence that is felt in the expensive ones, and the profits of the business would decline accordingly from gradual lessening of patronage. This is well understood by the insurance, trust and deposit companies. They do not pay large salaries from mere motives of benevolence and liberality; they use money in that way because it serves to increase their dividends. In not a few cases men receive such salaries simply for acting as figure-heads, while the work is all done and the responsibility all borne by others. The corporations are not in the habit of paying exorbitant prices for actual labor; they can get that satisfactorily done at ordinary rates. But they are always willing to give a large salary to a man whose reputation will tend to strengthen public confidence in their methods and purposes. They are not to be blamed, but commended, for such a policy. The presence of a man of tested and recognized ability and fidelity at the head of one of these concerns is not only a benefit to the concern itself, but also to its patrons and all who are in any way interested in its operations. Large salaries can well be paid where they bring large receipts; and that is the true secret of such expenditures.

WOFUL WASTE OF GAS.

The Mayor's Committee Gets Some Pointers.

Belief That Fully One-Half is Wasted Uselessly—Another Trip to the Field—Will Go to Pittsburg Wednesday.

Saturday afternoon the mayor's investigating committee met in Mayor Emmick's office and decided to make one more visit to the field, and also to visit the gas pumping stations in the vicinity of Pittsburg.

Prior to the meeting proper the members talked over in an informal way the gas situation as it is to-day.

"It appears to me," said Mr. Romeis, "that there is something wrong at this end of the line.

"You can just bet that there is," Mayor Emmick replied. "There is something wrong somewhere."

"I am willing to bet a new hat," said Mr. Lane, "that more of the city's gas is being wasted than is consumed. What between the open pipes and these Jumbo burners one-half the gas is being ruthlessly wasted."

"We had a test this afternoon," said Mr. Emmick, "which shows that one of these large burners consumes more than a No. 3 mixer."

"The straight pipe," said a gentleman present, "which runs direct from the line to the stove without meter or mixer is the worst waste. The gas flows into the stove, but owing to a failure to get the necessary supply of air not one-half of it is consumed."

Mr. Burdick—"Do you mean to say that such is the case?"

"Yes, I do. I know parties who are using it."

Mr. Lane—"Just think of it. And then the hundreds of mixers that have been bored out."

Dr. Forbes—"Some prompt steps should be taken in the matter. These people should be notified and—"

Mr. Tucker—"No. The board should send out its men at once and have those mixers and pipes changed."

Mr. Lane—"I honestly believe if the gas that is now being used here in the city belonged to the Northwestern that company could supply 12,000 consumers with it instead of 6,000 as the city is doing."

"I wonder what is being done by the board relative to the charges preferred by Mr. Backus?" asked one gentleman.

"There is a good deal in what Mr. Backus says. Just think of one firm using 24 jumbo burners, each one consuming as much as a No. 3 mixer and paying for the same three cents a month each. It is a singular condition of affairs."

Dr. Jones sat smiling during this interesting discussion, but he had nothing to say.

The committee, then got down to practical business, Mayor Emmick presided, Mr. Tucker acting as secretary.

Mr. Romeis said he could not go to Pittsburg, but was willing to take another day in the field.

Mayor Emmick said he would like if all the committee could go to Pittsburg.

Asked if he knew what the pressure was in the high pressure field, Dr. Jones said he thought it was less than 300 pounds.

Dr. Forbes laughingly remarked that the statement was not very specific.

After some discussion it was decided that Messrs. Romeis and Tucker should go to the Perry township field on Tuesday, and that Messrs. Emmick, Tucker, Lane, Forbes and possibly Burdick should leave for Pittsburg Wednesday night, getting there Thursday morning, and leaving for Toledo again Friday night.

BANKERS AT A BANQUET

Discussed the Question of Free Coinage.

A Notable Affair Held in Chicago.

The World's Output and Consumption of Silver as Viewed by a Financier of World-Wide Reputation.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—A notable affair socially, and likely to prove memorable in political and financial circles, was the annual dinner of the Chicago Bankers' club at Kinsley's. An even three score of guests, including not a few of the leaders in western monetary affairs were present.

The feature of the occasion was a remarkable address in advocacy of the free coinage of silver by Wm. P. St. John, of the Mercantile National bank, of New York. However much or little the distinguished audience were influenced in their personal views by President St. John's utterances, the hearty applause that was accorded him left no doubt of their appreciation of his eloquence—a quality which they seemed to enjoy with the more keenness from its known rarity among representatives of their class.

Mr. St. John was gracefully introduced by Vice President John C. Black, of the Continental National bank, of Chicago, who presided and acted as toastmaster.

"Free coinage and free silver," said Mr. St. John, "are the common but misleading terms for a mere proposal to restore the coinage system of the United States founded by Washington, as advised by Alexander Hamilton and recommended by Thomas Jefferson, and ratified subsequently by Andrew Jackson. That old system of equally unrestricted coinage for gold and silver, which it is now proposed to reinstate, was maintained continually for 81 years, until overthrown unnoticeably in 1873, and yet no objections are now too paradoxical to hail from one and the same antagonist of silver coinage. The same man will denounce it as a scheme of mine owners to enhance the value of silver, and a swindle of pensioners by reducing the value of the legal tender silver dollar; and then a futile endeavor to reduce the value of money by enlarging its volume, futile because the enactment will banish gold, but nevertheless a practical repudiation of 30 cents on the dollar of all debts to benefit the debtor class."

Mr. St. John rapidly analyzed the monetary conditions of continental Europe, as showing their need of silver and the world's insufficiency of gold if Europe should desire to discard her silver. In Europe only silver, he said, is her coined money. It is equally her legal tender as her gold, therefore Europeans would get nothing more available as money at home in a dollar for dollar exchange of their silver coin for gold.

Continuing, he said: "The bank of France reserves its stocks of silver, like its stock of gold, as the unlimited lawful money of France. Irrespective of bullion value. As such it will liquidate that bank's vast liabilities at par. Therefore our reopened mints could not attract it a discount. The minimum discount would be 3.06 per cent. Her old coin would lose 5 per cent. in a dollar for dollar exchange at our mints. That chartered bank could not recoin her $250,000,000 of silver here, which is serviceable at home to redeem her $600,000,000 of circulating notes at par unless her shareholders would sanction its surrender at a discount. A discount of 5 per cent. would mean a sacrifice on their account of $12,500,000 in such evidently valueless exchange."

Mr. St. John furnished figures of the world's consumption of silver at present, which, including our treasury absorption, would appear to be in excess of the world's present production of silver. The available supplies in London, San Francisco and New York, he said, are reduced from over 15,000,000 ounces to less than 7,000,000 ounces as the result, to date, of the first 18 months' operation of our silver purchase law of 1890. In the wheat market such a situation would boom the price and permanently. He remarked that this present excess of consumption over the production of silver is in spite of fluctuation of prices which reduced India's absorption by over $17,000,000 worth of silver during nine months.

The speaker argued that the proposed fixity of the price for silver at our great mints would so enlarge India's absorption so as to assure the permanency of our law successfully. For with one dollar obtainable for 412 1-2 grains of standard silver in any amount offered at our mints, no one could obtain silver at a lower price elsewhere. Our vast and increasing domestic trade use of money would furnish employment for all the dollars of gold and silver emitted from the mints, in coin or by paper substitute, and the parity of bullion value for our gold and silver dollars would be accomplished and maintained thereby in the markets of the world.

Mr. St. John submitted statistics showing to them the inadequacy of the world's supplies of gold for money. He cited the United States supreme court decisions of 1870 and 1884, which, he said, confirm the power of congress to create and issue money and assume that congress will not hereafter employ banks and bank profit to issue substitutes for money. He instanced what he described as the popular determination that the volume of money in the United States shall not depend hereafter, as frequently heretofore, on the accruing of profit to banks upon bank issues of circulating notes. Hence, said he, the two alternatives between which conservatives are to choose are, first, the reopening of the mints to equally free coinage for gold and silver, the coin to circulate by paper substitute when preferred; and, second, the indeterminate issues of the treasury paper that must be irredeemable if the gold is the only acceptable primary money.

"The proposed reopening of the mints to gold and silver alike," said Mr. St. John in conclusion, "besides maintaining the parity of bullion value of our dollars, will provide an automatic issue of money limited by the mine product of hard labor. The sole alternative suggested is the inestimable capricious issue of limitless legal tender notes."

FOR A COUGH.

Here is a good recipe for a cough remedy: Soak a gill of whole flaxseed in half a pint of boiling water. In another dish put a cupfull of broken bits of slippery elm, and cover this also with boiling water. Let these stand for two hours, then strain them both through a muslin cloth into a saucepan containing a pound and a half of granulated sugar. Extract all the liquor possible, stir the sugar until it is melted, and then boil it until it turns to candy. Pour it out at once when it reaches this point on to greased papers. Some persons add the juice of two lemons after the candy has cooked for ten minutes.

BIG BLAZE IN NEW YORK.

Smith Gray and Company Burned Out.

A Clock Tower Falls on the Elevated Tracks and Will Stop Travel for Several Days.

New York, Feb. 29.—About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire was discovered coming from the cellar of the large clothing establishment of Smith, Gray & Co., at Fulton and Flatbush avenue and Nevins street, Brooklyn.

At 4:30 o'clock the entire building was destroyed. The building was constructed of Nova Scotia stone, iron and brick. It had a frontage of 176 feet on Fulton street, Nevins and Flatbush.

There was a clock tower on the Fulton street side that rose to a height of 196 feet from the street and was 20 feet square. This fell with a terrific crash at 3:45 o'clock, striking as it did so the south track of the Kings county elevated structure and carrying down about 50 feet of the track. A portion of the station platform was also destroyed and the stairs leading up to the station, the loss thus being about $10,000.

Traffic on the road was suspended. The building where the fire originated was owned by Millard Smith and W. G. Randolph, who are the principles of the firm of Smith, Gray & Co., and also constituted the firm of the Fulton and Flatbush Storage Co.

The building was valued at $200,000, and was insured for $175,000. The stock of Smith, Gray & Co. was insured for $150,000, which is considerable less than its value.

The storage portion of the building was divided into 400 rooms, 300 of which were occupied. The loss here will reach $200,000, which is largely covered by insurance.

The fire extended to the three-story brick building on Nevins street, with a frontage of 90 feet and a depth of 90 feet, owned by Joseph Jefferson, the actor, and occupied as a boarding and livery stable. This was completely gutted, entailing a loss of $50,000.

Five other contiguous buildings were damaged about $20,000. Two firemen were severely injured.

Does Blaine Enter the Divorce Contest?

After Three Years of Complete Silence,

After the Decree of Divorce is Granted,

He Attacks the Wife of His Son.

A Letter From the Secretary of State on the Affairs of His Family Which Will Prove of General Interest.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Mr. Blaine furnishes for publication the following, under the heading of "A Personal Statement:"

"Since the separation of my son and his wife three and a half years ago my family have silently borne every misrepresentation, every slanderous attack, every newspaper interview, which it has pleased the now divorced wife to inspire. The one person aimed at has been Mrs. Blaine; and we have perhaps been at fault in allowing a horror of the public discussion of private matters, combined with a regard for the future of my grandson, to permit so much calumny to go unanswered. The last outrage of the kind embodied in the decision of the judge at Deadwood, Dak., assumes an official character which makes it impossible to remain longer silent.

"To remain silent would be to accept and perpetuate a great wrong to my wife—a greater wrong to my grandson than even a publication of the truth can inflict upon him. It is necessary in speaking that I should give a summary, as brief as possible, of the marriage and of the incidents which followed it and led to the separation.

"A letter which I addressed to the Rev. Thomas I Ducey, at the time of the marriage, will distinctly state the important facts bearing upon that event:

"'Augusta, Me., Sept. 13, 1886.

"'Rev. Thomas I. Ducey, Rector St. Leo's Church, 16 East Twenty-ninth Street, New York City:

"'Sir: On Wednesday morning last, the 8th instant, my youngest son, James G. Blaine, junior, shocked me by the announcement that on the preceding Monday he had been united in marriage with Miss Marie Nevins; that you had performed the ceremony in your own rectory; that my son and Miss Nevins were unaccompanied by friend or relative and that two of your household servants were the sole witnesses. My son's announcement gave the first knowledge that I, or any member of my family, had of his marriage, or of his attachment to Miss Nevins—whose character I wish to say at the outset is not at all in question and of whom, but for this rash marriage, I have never heard a breath of censure.

"'My son was born October 12, 1868, and is not therefore 18 years old. He was living here in his own home in the house where he was born, surrounded by neighbors who had known him all his life, under the daily care of a tutor who was fitting him for college which he hoped to enter this autumn. To facilitate this preparation he desired to remain here during the summer while the other members of the family were much of the time at Bar Harbor. As I have since learned Miss Nevins, in company with her sister and her father, came to Augusta on Monday, August 16. On Friday, September 3, 18 days after her arrival in Augusta, my son, who had never seen her or heard her name until she came here, left his home without permission and without the knowledge of any member of his family and accompanied Miss Nevins and her sister to their mother in New York. On Saturday the 4th, the two young persons presented themselves to you for marriage. Through my eldest son, Walker Blaine, who went to New York as soon as I heard these unhappy tidings, I learned that James misrepresented his age to you, stating that he was within a month or two of 21. But he did not (according to your own narrative to my son Walker) conceal from you the vital fact that he was a minor; he did not conceal from you but openly vowed, that I had no knowledge whatever of his intention to be married, and that his special design was to keep all knowledge of it from me. In this concealment he sought your aid and abetment and you held his secret under consideration from Saturday until Monday, agreeing with my son not to advise any member of my family of his rash purpose. You took him to the archbishop in order that a dispensation might be secured to enable Miss Nevins, who was reared a Catholic, to marry my son, who was born, baptized and reared a Protestant. You knew that during the long interval in which you were making these preparations I was within a moment's reach by telegraph, and yet you never gave the slightest intimation to me the most deeply interested and responsible party.

"'In defense of this conduct you alleged to my son Walker the confidence reposed in you as a priest by my son. The confidence of the confessional is always respected; but by your use of confidences reposed in you outside of the confessional, even by those not of the Catholic communion, you perforce become an accomplice before the act of any crime or imprudence to which you may listen. It is not for me to advise a minister of your intelligence that your position is absolutely untenable, and would be dangerous to society, and would not be respected by any court of the land. You further alleged in justification of your action that if you had not performed the ceremony some one else outside of your communion would have done it. This is a common defense of evil doing, and is unworthy of a priest and a man. You might as well justify your murder of a man by chloroform on the ground that some one else would murder him with a dagger.

"'A week ago my boy was under my protection—the most helpless and least responsible member of my family; erratic, but controlable through his strong affection; an object of constant watfulness to his parents, his brothers and his sisters; a source of constant anxiety, but not of despair, because he is of good abilities and easily influenced to the right as to the wrong, and because the patience of love can never know weariness. To-day, through your agency, this boy in years, in experience, in judgment, in practical capacity, leaves my home and my care, burdened with the full responsibilities of a man; with the welfare of a woman in his keeping

"'I am powerless. I cannot question the legality of the marriage. I shall at a distance, and at every disadvantage endeavor to guide my son; but as a father living under the divine institution of the family; as a citizen living under the divine order of society, I protest against your act. As a servant of God to whose ministry you are ordained, I call God to witness between you and me. Of whatever evils resulting from this deplorable marriage my son may be the author or the victim the guilt be on your head.

'JAMES G. BLAINE.'

The Marriage Arranged by Miss Nevins.

"When I wrote this letter I believed that Miss Nevins had no other responsibility in the marriage than in consenting to my son's appeal and was blameworthy for this alone. Since then I am prepared to say that the marriage was arranged by her far more than by my son; that she did everything to promote it; suggested every arrangement; anticipated and provided for every emergency and that, in fact, but for her personal, active and untiring agency the marriage would never have taken place. In this she showed knowledge and forethought not to be expected in a woman of 21 years.

"'Write nothing until I see you. Let me know at once about the law (of marriage). I can't wait to hear. It makes me ill.'

"'Can you come to me a moment? I am alone. Do not send up your card. Did you see the laws? Do not keep up suspense.

"'The Bar Harbor house is perfect, but I love the dear old place here better. Do not ask any questions that may lead people to suspect anything. Remember that we are in the mouths of every man, woman and child in Augusta. Every word you speak is repeated and misconstrued. Every look of yours, every flush of your face is talked of. Look into the laws only to-morrow and perhaps one question at the bank; where he obtained money for his marriage journey on my account, by inducing the cashier to advance him funds on his memorandum, a thing he had never learned to do before he met Miss Nevans. 'All else can wait. Oh, do be careful. I feel now all sorts of dreadful things are said of us. You do not know how vile the world is. Do look up the laws. Let the rest keep. Did you look into the laws of Massachusetts and New York? I am not sure. Answer this to-night.'

"'I have at last thought of the only man on earth whom we can both trust for witness. He is a man I can telegraph for to come to Boston if we find it necessary. He is a man and he adores every member of my family. . . . . I have known him since I was a child. He would go to any place with us and none know. He never would breathe it as long as he lived. If you say so I will give him a gentle hint that I will need his services for an emergency—but not tell him for what.'

"'Do write me at once what the New York law is. Answer at once.'

"When they reached New York after they had fled from Augusta she cautioned my son not to 'forget the $20 gold piece in a little box for Ducey,' and 'to look in the pocket of your gray clothes for the ring.' In short she took charge of every matter and directed all the proceedings to the last minutiae.

"It was thus that a boy of 17 years and 10 months, in some respects inexperienced even for his age, was tempted from his school books and his tutor and blindly led to the altar by a young woman of full 21 years—with entire secrecy contrived by herself and with all the instrumentalities of her device complete and exact.

"When my oldest son Walker went to New York, as I have related in the Ducey letter, his object was to see whether this marriage of my youngest son might not be invalid or could not be annulled, by reason of his youth. It was met with the assertion that it was too late for any proceedings to set aside the marriage, because after the marriage, the bride, instead of returning to her mother, had taken passage for Boston with the groom on one of the night steamers on Long Island sound. She returned from Boston to New York the following day and he came on home to Augusta. This fact was learned for the first time by Walker, a boy's modesty having prevented my son James from bringing it to my knowledge.

Mrs. Blaine Falsely Accused.

"I propose next to show by a somewhat minute statement of facts and dates the falsity of the assertion that Mrs. Blaine broke up the marriage relations of my son and his wife. She did not see her daughter-in-law until in May, 1887, eight months after the marriage, when being in New York the latter called upon her twice during her two days' stay. The next time she saw her was a month later. When about to sail for Europe on the 8th of June she was a single say in New York and saw the young woman on taking leave.

"At the end of 14 months we returned from Europe and stopped two or three days in New York. We found that in our absence my son had not only spent his entire allowance, but that he was deeply in debt. It was then arranged that both my son and his wife should come down to Augusta and have their future determined at a family council. They arrived in Augusta on Saturday, the 18th of August. Mrs. Blaine was absent from home on a visit and returned Monday afternoon, the 20th, so that she saw James' wife for the first time in Augusta on the evening of August 20.

"Within two or three days I learned the details of the dismal failure of their New York life, and after full consultation with Mrs. Blaine and with her free approval, I proposed that they should come to live at Augusta and occupy our old home. I had a summer house at Bar Harbor and as I intended to spend all my winters in Washington, this house would be vacant if they did not occupy it. The house being large I proposed to pay for fuel and light and the wages of a man servant; and I would furnish them with a horse and carriage. I also assured them in addition the sum of $2,500 a year until my son should be able to earn an income of that amount. I made the proposition while we were sitting on the lawn with my son's wife but a few feet distant. My son went immediately over to her and I know that he told her in detail just what my offer was. Her reply was that she would not stay in Augusta on any consideration. He was very much disconcerted by her decision and for the first time informed his mother and myself of his a fact which was not before known, but which was not received with surprise.

"We then learned that during our absence in Europe he had become gradually estranged from her, and her refusal to accept the residence in Augusta was merely the last of a long series of disagreements which threatened to make their united life impossible and which led finally to a separation. Disater is the only legitimate conclusion of such a marriage. During the two weeks that my son's wife staid in Augusta it became patent to every member of my family and to every visitor and to no one more than myself that a separation was the least disaster to be dreaded.

"The immediate occasion of her departure was my son's going to Bangor at my request on Friday, August 31, with some documents for which I telegraphed (I was occupied with the campaign of the state), and he continued with me to Ellsworth, where I was to speak on Saturday, September 1. There being a violent rainstorm the meeting at Ellsworth was postponed to Monday, September 3. James spent the interval at Bar Harbor and I remained at Ellsworth. On Monday after the meeting James returned with me to Augusta and arrived at 11 p. m., only to learn that his wife had gone to New York at 3 p. m., 8 hours before he arrived. She knew well that James would be home that night.

"Mrs. Blaine had strongly disapproved of her departure, and had earnestly urged her to remain. She did not then dream that our son would not follow his wife, or that the eminent final separation would come so soon; but she deprecated the angry, and to us at least, sudden departure and the journey to New York alone with the infant and nurse. She did not, however, suspect that the young woman left with any less friendly feeling towards herself than towards every other member of the family except my son James.

"Finding the young woman determined to go, and foreseeing the difficulties in their path, since my daughter-in-law utterly declined the provision I made for their support, Mrs. Blaine repeatedly bade her remember that she would at any moment receive the child for any length of time—for one year and three years or 10 years, or for life; that he should receive, as all who know my wife will believe, the very best of care and attention; that she would put his mother under no conditions whatever, and that whenever she wished the child returned to her he should be sent. The offer was not accepted, but it was not declined. It appeared to be received in the same friendly spirit in which it was given. Thus my daughter-in-law left my home, the only home which my son could provide for her. She left behind her for my son a note whose temper and tone are sufficiently indicated by a single extract:

"'You knew when you left what the consequence of your trip to Bar Harbor (would be). What business had you at Bar Harbor?.... Why did you not telegraph me and not let me lie awake till nearly 4 o'clock? You shall live to regret all this. You have broken the greater part of your promises thus far and until you learn to be truthful you need not come near me. I am not here to have my affairs discussed among the neighbors. If you desire to have any communication with me you can address New York hotel.

(Signed simply) "'Mary Nevins-Blaine.'

"On reading this note, my son declared: 'I will not follow her, and I told her I would not when she made the threat.' Just 44 days after this wilful departure, she returned to my house accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Nevins, my grandson and his nurse. At the moment of their arrival there were in the house only Mrs. Blaine, who was ill, and the servants. Mrs. Blaine at once arose, dressed and went down stairs, having previously instructed her maid to do everything required for their comfort. This was the only time she ever met Mrs. Nevins. Neither lady advanced to greet her. No hand was extended to her, but from Mrs. Nevins, seconded by her daughter, came charges against her son and herself, so insulting, and so violent that a servant was called in for the frankly expressed purpose of acting as a restraint upon the elder visitor.

"On this brief stay of two weeks with us, and on this one last visit of two hours, rests all the substantiations of the statements of the judge at Deadwood. Before leaving for the west I had advised with Mrs. Blaine in the event of the return of her daughter-in-law and she acted upon my advice. Not a word since the separation has been written by her, nor has she seen my son's wife, except on the street in New York, when not a word was exchanged between them.

"My son was entirely free. No restraint was attempted, or desired, or needed to insure separation. On the day of his wife's departure he was as strongly determined as on the day of her divorce not to resume his relations with her. Far be it from me to hold my son blameable, though when his youth, his uncompleted education, his separation from the influences of home, the exchange of a life full of hopes and anticipations for premature cares and uncongenial companionship are considered I hold him more sinned against than sinning. But his mother, at no time, in thought or word, or deed, attempted to separate this man and his wife. On the contrary she did not fail by liberality, by consideration and by extenuation, to foster in every practicable way their happiness—if happiness to them had been possible.

BARTHOLDI'S WORLD'S FAIR GROUP.

M. Bartholdi, of Goddess of Liberty fame, has finished the design of his exhibit at the World's Fair, Chicago. He writes from Paris to Emile Karst, St. Louis:

"It is a group of Washington and Lafayette, and is at present at the foundry. It will figure at the next salon of Paris.

"I think it interesting to not only represent a man of fame by his features, but likewise by the souvenir that he personifies.

"For this reason I have represented Lafayette bringing the American flag supported by the French flag, and Washington, who thanks him.

"It has seemed to me that this group thus arranged would make evident all that grand epoch of the struggle sustained by America for her liberty and would be the most glorious monument that could be erected to Lafayette."

ON THE WAY TO PARADISE.

Let us hope that the people who habitually disregard their health will reach that desirable place, and avoid the locality which is less desirable as an eternal residence on account of the heat and surroundings generally. But while we tarry in this vale of tears, why tears, why should we voluntarily endure the tortures of dyspepsia when a systematic use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will rid us of the atrocious malady which—unless physicians are very much at fault—tends to shorten the term of our existence. Heartburn, biliousness, constipation almost always accompany this complaint and are symptomatic of it. These are all extinguished by the Bitters, which also conquers completely malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. Since the appearance of "la grippe" it has shown a singular mastery over this formidable complaint that has carried off so many of our brightest and best.

AN ASTONISHED PACHA.

Kassim Pacha, when minister of war for Egypt, was very particular in regard to the personal appearance of his officers and issued stringent orders that they should never appear unshaven in public. One day he met upon the street a lieutenant who had bearded the pacha and disreparded his orders. "To what regiment do you belong?" demanded the indignant minister. "To the — regiment at Abasseuh," replied the frightened lieutenant. "Get into my carriage at once so that I can carry you to the encampment and have you publicly punished," was the stern command that followed. The young man obeyed, and the twain rode along when the pacha stopped his carriage and entered an office where he would be detained for some time on business. Seizing the opportunity the culprit sprang from the vehicle, darted into a neighboring barber's stall and regained his post before the return of his jailer, minus his beard. For the remainder of the route the officer buried his face in his hands and seemed the picture of apprehension. Abasseuh was reached at last, and all the officers were assembled to witness the degradation of their comrade, who all the while kept well in the rear of his chief. "Come forward, you son of a dog," cried the irate pacha, when there stepped before him an officer with a face as clean as a baby's, and a look of the most supreme innocence. His excellency gave one look of blank astonishment, and then, with an appreciative smile breaking over his war-worn features, turned to the assembled officers and said: "Here, gendemen, your old minister is a fool, and your young lieutenant is a captain."—Levant Herald.

CANDIDATES ARE PLENTY.

Men Who Want to Run for Office

Under the Banner of the People's Party.

Views of Representative Alliance Men Who Have Been Honored by Being Sent to Congress.

Washington, Feb 29.—The echoes of the St. Louis convention have scarcely died away ere the rank and file of the allied industrial organization have begun to discuss the possible presidential candidates of the national people's party.

The convention for the nomination of candidates for president and vice-president will not be held until July 4, at Omaha, and as both of the other leading parties will have made their nominations by that time the people's party will be in a position to make the strongest possible nomination for the purpose of carrying the doubtful states in which their organizations have in the past manifested the greatest strength.

General James B. Weaver, of Iowa, once the candidate of the greenback party for president of the United States; Hon. L. L. Polk, North Carolina, now president of the national farmers' alliance; Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota; United States Senator Leland Sanford, of California; T. V. Powderly, grand master of the Knights of Labor; Hon. Nelson G. Streeter, of Illinois, late candidate of the farmers' mutual benefit association for the United States, senator for Illinois, are a few of those who are now being discussed as possible presidential or vice-presidential candidates of the people's party.

"In my opinion," said Representative Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, to-day, "Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, is most likely to be the people's party candidate for the presidency. At any rate he has up to this time been the man most desired in that connection, but I would not be surprised if the sentiment in favor of Ignatius Donnelly assumed formidable proportions. He developed great strength out at St. Louis and the preamble to the platform, which was written by him, is, in my opinion, one of the most vigorous and at the same time most classic productions of modern literature. The preamble has won Donnelly many friends, and he will be a prominent candidate if he desires the nomination. As a matter of fact, I do not think that Weaver really cares for the nomination, although he seems to be a favorite and is the man most talked of among the farmers' alliance people. I think there is not a question but that President Polk of the farmers' alliance will be the candidate for vice-president."

Representative Watson, of Georgia, the candidate of the people's party representative in the house for speaker, was compelled to remain in Washington to look after the legislative demands of his party and did not attend the St. Louis convention. He is earnest in his approval of all that was done at St. Louis, however, and thinks that the various industrial organizations are now fairly united on a common platform and into one political party. "The result of the St. Louis convention," said he, "has been a revelation to the old-time politicians of the country. They have been predicting for weeks how we were to meet at St. Louis, like fighting Kilkenny cats and then go to pieces and retire demoralized; but not a single one of their predictions has been realized. With less friction than is encountered in the usual national convention of either of the old parties, our people, representing almost a score of different industrial organizations, have met at St. Louis and agreed upon a platform and declaration of principles which are agreeable to all and upon which the fight will be conducted all along the line and in every state in the union in the campaign. I feel greatly encouraged by the fact that all these industrial organizations, coming there from different parts of the country, each with its favorite plan and principles, were yet able to harmoniously pool their issues and to make one declaration common to all which shall appeal warmly to the reform sentiment of their country. I regard the platform as a very strong presentation of substantially the same principles which have called these various organizations into existence and upon which they have been educating the people for the last four or five years, and it will now command the full support of the industrial organizations of all classes. I have no doubt that the Omaha convention will keep right in the middle of the road, nominate acceptable candidates, and that we will have a brilliant campaign which will bring the people into a more thorough understanding of the principles of their government and the changes that ought to be made than this country has known since the foundation of the government. The Omaha convention will put into official party shape that which was agreed upon at St. Louis by a convention of non-partisan organizations.

"As to who the candidate of the people's party will be," continued Representative Watson, "I really cannot say, but I think the candidate for the presidency will be some man who has been well identified with the revolt against the existing state of affairs, some man who has made sacrifices for it, who is known for the fidelity with which he has served in this cause; and I think it is quite unnecessary that such a man should have a barrel. I think the only question should be, 'is he identified with us; is he a man of good standing, and he is a man of broad ability, fitted to lead a campaign as a presidential candidate?' I do not think that our success depends on the amount of boodle that we can put in the campaign. We are not a party of boodle and corruption. I believe that our strongest plan of campaign would be to appeal straight and frankly to the sense and conscience of the people and to avoid as far as possible the machine methods of the boodle politicians against whom we have raised this revolt."

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Private Secretary at Wheeler's This Evening.

Held by the Enemy at the People's—The Kendals—Niobe—Bernhardt Coming.

There has been a large sale of seats for the presentation of "The Private Secretary" at Wheeler's this evening and the audience will probably be a large one. The following is from the Atlanta Herald:

"Gillette's Private Secretary is intrinsically funny and might be presented by very inferior talent and yet be amusing in itself; the reference to inferior talent, however, applies in no manner whatever to the company that enacted it at DeGive's last night. Throughout the cast the roles were well sustained, and the play was given in such a manner as to bring forth from the audience the heartiest testimonials of their appreciation of the true merits of the company. The audience was more representative of the culture of Atlanta than any that has heretofore gathered at the opera house this season; every seat in the parquette and dress circle was taken. In the cast last night Mr. Wm. Fairbanks in the title role interpreted the character excellently and created much amusement for the audience. Mr. H. Rees Davies, as the eccentric Mr. Cattermole, was particularly good, while Mr. Edwin Travers, as his wild young nephew evinced talent of a very high order. Mr. Harry Brinsley, as Harry Marsland, did well. Mr. E. J. Mack played Gibson cleverly. All the female roles were well played; in fact all the support was good."

Held by the Enemy.

"Held by the Enemy," a characteristic American drama, dealing with the civil war, will open at the People's to-night for a week's engagement. An exchange speaks of the performance as follows:

"As a whole, in finish and precision of staging and detail, the rendering was the most complete and effective ever given in this city. From beginning to end the movement is borne on with a spirit and sharpness of execution, a crispness of attack, to borrow a suggested phrase, and a concord of action which is essential to the full effect of melodrama, but is unfortunately so rarely shown. So much the more reason for full and hearty recognition when it is found here. The scenery and setting of the series of war views were good throughout, and the casemate in the fort where the court martial takes place, and the division headquarters under fire, are notably realistic.

"With rare unison and individual ability the actors in the drama conjoin to make each scene impressive. The rendering of even the slightest parts was remarkably intelligent and spirited, and the fact that none were slighted alone entitles the presentation to high praise. The stage manager and author deserve success, and have done all that they can be fairly called upon to do to secure it."

The Kendals.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal presented The Ironmaster at Wheeler's Saturday to an audence that packed the theater. The acting of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal was very fine, and they deserve all the praise that they have received. The play, however, was a poor one to display their powers, and considerable disappointment was expressed by those who attended.

The plot of the Ironmaster is a very common one, and it is worked out in a laboriously slow and monotonous manner. The company was good throughout, and are able support for the leading people.

Niobe.

A good many people are under the impression that because Harry and Edward Paulton (who are the authors of the libretto of that successful comic opera, Erminie,) wrote Niobe that it is a comic opera. Such is not the case. Niobe is a comedy of the drawing room order. The characters in it are types of to-day, with the exception of Niobe, who is of classical origin, and who comes to life again in the play amid nineteenth century surroundings. The original New York cast from the Bijou theater will be seen in Toledo Thursday night.

Bernhardt Coming.

Toledo theater goers will be pleased to learn that the famous Sara Bernhardt will favor them by appearing here Friday evening, March 11. This will probably be her only appearance in this city, and will be the event of the season. The play she will put on has not yet been announced.

Paul Kauvar.

Steele Mackaye's powerful drama of the French revolution, Paul Kauvar, with Edward L. Snader in the title role, will be presented at the Wheeler opera house next Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, March 4 and 5.

Mr. Snader has received many favorable critical commendations in his personation of Paul Kauvar. He seems well fitted for the portrayal of the hero in the play, and has shown ability of no mean kind in the character.

The story of the play is not the tale of blood and thunder that one would expect in a play in which is shown the guillotine, having just completed its work, but a story of France in which pathos and love interest are very potent factors.

The plot is clear, the tale is interesting, and many of the situations are exciting without being overwrought. Steele Mackaye has written sharp but strong dialogue for his characters, but his situations are so distinct that the story would be understood without the dialogue.

THE REPORT ON WOOLS.

Mr. Springer Has Completed His Task.

Reasons Given Why the Tariff is Too High and in What Way it Should be Lowered.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The reports of the majority and minority of the house committee on ways and means to accompany the Springer wool bill have been prepared. The majority report was prepared by Mr. Springer and the minority report by Mr. Burrows, of Michigan. The majority report says the McKinley bill was passed with enormous rates of duties, many of them prohibitory, and all of them unreasonably high. "There can be no good reason," says the report, "for maintaining such high taxes upon articles which are so necessary to the health and comfort of the people."

The rates proposed in the bill submitted, the report says, are fixed with due regard to the labor, cost of production, and to the necessities of consumers. The lowest rates are placed upon goods upon which the least labor has been bestowed, and which are consumed by the greatest number of people. In considering the effect of the tariff of 1867 on sheep husbandry the report says:

"In 1868 there were 6,739,000 sheep in Ohio; in 1880 there were only 3,943,000 reported; while in 1891 the number was given at 4,061,000. Similar results took place in all other states east of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

"The increase in the number of sheep in the United States has been in states west of those rivers or in localities where there was a free range upon the public domain. There were in the whole United States in 1868 nearly 39,000,000 sheep; at this time there are only 43,000,000, an increase of 4,439,000 in 24 years, the whole increase being in sheep upon the ranches in the west.

"The wool growers of 1867 believed that the imposition of high tariffs on wool would secure them control of the home market. The result proves how greatly they were mistaken and how ineffectual the law has been to produce the condition which they desired.

"As to its effect on prices, wool has steadily declined from 1867, when it was worth 62 cents per pound in currency, to the present time.

"Nor," adds the report, "have the manufacturers of woolen goods been benefited by the imposition of high duties on wool and woolen goods. With high protective tariff on the raw material and compensatory and high ad valorem duties on the finished product, and products limited to the home market, woolen manufacturers cannot even hope to increase their productions beyond the annual increase of population."

The minority report says that from both wool growers and wool manufacturers there comes up to this congress an almost unanimous sentiment that the law may be permitted to stand as it is. Within the year that has passed since the present law was enacted the flocks of the United States have increased more than 1,500,000 sheep, and under any assurance of its permanence this increase will continue rapidly. The number of woolen mills in the country has also increased; a great amount of idle machinery has been started up to supply the new market created by a curtailment of $22,500,000 in the imports of foreign woolen goods; old mills, long idle, have been re-equipped; large numbers of operatives have been given employment and new industries, never before successfully undertaken in the United States, have been inaugurated. The committee's bill, the minority says, proposes to deprive the wool-growing industry in the United States at one blow, of the entire protection it has enjoyed under every tariff act since 1816. It can have but one effect, the complete and final abandonment of the effort to produce in the United States the supply of wool needed for the clothing of our people. A careful comparison of prices shows that the wool tariff has kept the price of domestic wool above the level of foreign wool by nearly the full amount of the duty, and it has been potent in protecting our own clip from the unrestricted influx of the surplus of the foreign supply.

THE CONDITION OF GOULD.

He is Reported Much Better To-Day.

If No Reverses Occur He Will Start for an Extended Southern Trip on Tuesday.

New York, Feb. 29.—Jay Gould was so much better yesterday that he sat up nearly all day, though Dr. Munn refused to allow the financier to receive visitors.

The physician called several times during the day, but did not find it necessary to administer any medicine other than those regularly prescribed.

Mr. Gould felt so much better that he told the doctor that he would begin preparations for his trip to the south, and, although the doctor was averse to his patient's making a journey in his feeble condition, he finally gave his consent, and unless the condition of Mr. Gould changes for the worse in the meantime, the start will be made on Tuesday.

THE STUNDISTS.

The Story of Their Bitter Persecution for Conscience Sake.

An Englishman residing in St. Petersburg and familiar with the Russian life and language, writes to a friend of ours about the present situation, and draws our attention to the suffering of Russian Stundists and Baptists.

"People do nothing but talk of the famine; some leaving their families and going to the villages to organize help for the suffering peasants; others maturing plans of aggrandizement by plundering the poor of their last kopecks—nay, of the alms given to them; others, again—and some of them humane, good men—maintaining that death itself is far preferable to the life of misery which the wretched peasants are forced to lead at the best of times.

"A deputation from the Society of Friends has been here in St. Petersburg for some time, endeavoring to find out the extent of the distress and the nature of the relief which is being afforded. I am exceedingly sorry that they did not go to the south, where they would see sights worthy to be described in all the languages of Europe, and witness misery that piteously appeals for aid on grounds which they, and Englishmen generally, would not be slow to appreciate. I allude to about 250,000 Russian peasants, who were excellent and most successful farmers, whose houses were clean, neat and warm, like model English cottages, whose granaries were always stocked, whom drought, frost, and rain could not cheat of their harvest, and whose lives were in all respects exemplary. They are sectarians, whose religious views and practices coincide partly with those of the Methodists, and, to a not inconsiderable extent, with those of the Friends. Now these men are being turned out of house and home by the authorities for refusing to abandon their religious convictions and re-enter the orthodox church. And when they have been reduced to beggary these same authorities and the very priests refuse to give them assistance. These people deserve a fair share of any relief that is to be had, because, with a view to influence their religious belief, the authorities deny them a portion of the alms that are being collected for all."—Free Russia.
